WASHINGTON (AP) — A tape recording played at the Watergate cover-up trial today disclosed that former President Richard M. Nixon discussed the vulnerability of some of his top aides to criminal charges on March 17, 1973 — four days before he claimed to have his first detailed knowledge about Watergate.

It was the first time that portion of the tape or a transcript of it has ever been made public.

In the conversation Nixon was told by John W. Dean III that he had attended meetings where political espionage, including burglary and wiretapping, was discussed but that he thought the plans had been "turned off."

The jury then heard Dean saying, "The next thing I heard was ... the break-in on June 17."

Nixon asked, "You heard discussion of that, but you didn't hear any discussion of bugging, did you, in that, your meetings? Or did you?"

Later the President is heard to say: "Where this thing leads, I mean in terms of the vulnerabilities and so forth. It's your view the vulnerabilities are basically Mitchell, Colson, Haldeman, indirectly, possibly directly..."

John N. Mitchell, Nixon's former attorney general two-time campaign manager, and H. R. Haldeman, his chief-of-staff, are two of the five defendants being tried for conspiring to cover-up the Watergate break-in. Charles W. Colson, Nixon's special counsel, also had been charged with conspiracy, but he pleaded guilty in another case and the charges were dismissed.

The other defendants in the trial are John D. Ehrlichman, formerly Nixon's domestic counsel, and two men who worked for his re-election committee, Kenneth W. Parkinson and Robert C. Mardian.

The jurors, listening on headphones to their third White House tape in two days and following the taped conversation with a transcript, heard Dean tell Nixon that he too was vulnerable, to a degree.

"I know, I know, but ... you were in it after the deed was done."

Dean: "That's correct that I have no foreknowledge..."

Nixon: "...All the others that have participated in the Goddamned thing, and therefore are potentially subject to criminal liability. You're not. That's the difference."

The conversation turned to Jeb Stuart Magruder, deputy to Mitchell on the re-election committee, and Dean told the President, "If Jeb ever sees himself sinking, he will reach out to grab everybody he can get a hold of ... The unfortunate thing is, in this whole thing, Jeb is the most responsible man for the whole incident."

Magruder and Dean, less than a month later, went to U.S. attorneys with confessions of their part in the Watergate cover-up. Magruder, as well as Dean, each pleaded guilty to a single count of obstruction of justice and both are serving prison terms.

Dean earlier testified that Ehrlichman said he would talk to Nixon about demands by some of the Watergate burglars for assurances of help from the White House.

Dean, testifying at the Watergate cover-up trial of Ehrlichman and four other men, said the demand was communicated to special counsel Charles W. Colson from E. Howard Hunt, one of the principals in the Watergate burglary.

On Jan. 3, 1973, Dean said, Colson reported that he had met with Hunt's attorney, William O. Bittman, who said Hunt was "most distraught, washed out, his ulcers were bothering him, his mental attitude was bad and he wanted to plead guilty" unless assurances were coming from the White House.

Ehrlichman said Colson should not get into any specific executive clemency or grants of clemency with Mr. Bittman." Dean said. He added that Ehrlichman said he "would take it up with the President himself and that Colson should not bring it up but wait until Ehrlichman gets back to him."

On Jan. 5, three days before Hunt and the six other men were scheduled to go on trial, Colson told Ehrlichman and Dean that "I have given Bittman assurances, but no hard commitments," Dean testified. He said that Colson related he had told the Hunt lawyer:

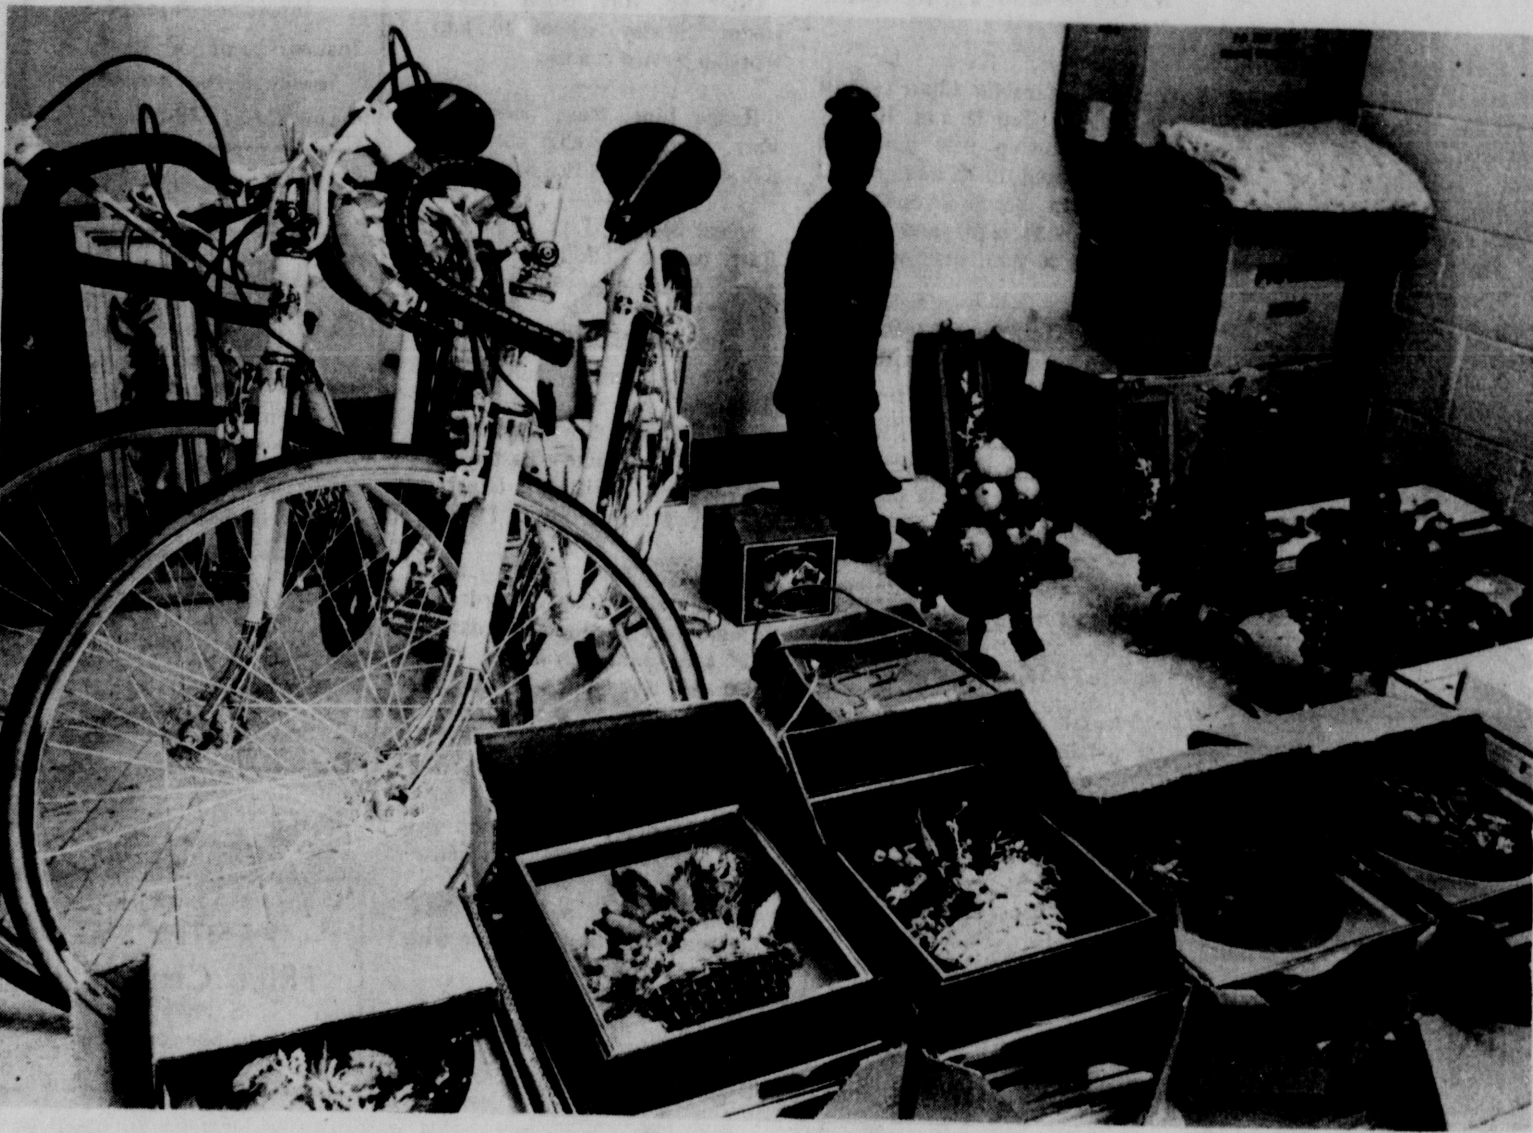

"You can tell Hunt a year is a long time and clemency is generally considered around Christmas time."

After hearing that, Dean said, he told Ehrlichman that the word certainly would spread among the other defendants and asked what he should do if they also made demands on the White House.

"He said give the others the same assurances but no hard commitments," Dean related.

Afterward, he said, he told former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, also one of the defendants in this case, about the assurances given to Hunt but said he could not recall Mitchell's response.

Dean also testified that Ehrlichman and Mitchell became uneasy about the prospect of re-election committee official Frederick LaRue traveling about the country soliciting funds without being able to say what the money would be used for.

Stolen merchandise recovered

More than $1,200 in merchandise which had been stolen from Kim Originals, 2500 East Broadway, was recovered by Sedalia police Thursday morning. Most of the items were found at the home of a company employee, Steven J. Meives, 22, 1805 South Park. Meives was arraigned in Pettis County Magistrate Court Friday morning on charges of second degree burglary and stealing. (Democrat-Capital Photo)

Ammunition, merchandise recovered

The theft of more than $1,200 worth of merchandise, plus assorted ammunition, led to the arraignment Friday morning of a 22-year-old Sedalia man.

Steve Meives, 204 Gentry, was charged with second degree burglary and stealing.

He allegedly took a statue, tape recorder, various wall plaques, picture frames, candles, artificial flower arrangements and other items from his employer, Kim Originals, 2500 East Broadway, in recent weeks.

He was taken into custody by police at 8:30 a.m. Thursday while at work, after police received a call from the business expressing suspicion that Meives might have taken the items.

Police questioned Meives, who then took officers to his home where the merchandise was found. Police said statues from a local cemetery were also found in the residence. It was believed that other items stolen from the business were previously sold.

The ammunition included several boxes of .45 and .38 caliber shells reportedly taken while Meives was on a training exercise Oct. 5 with his Missouri Army National Guard unit at Whiteman AFB.

Police said they believe Meives had access to the ammunition. No thefts were reported from the local Guard Army itself, and no weapons thefts were involved.

As of noon Friday, Meives remained in the county jail in lieu of $3,500 bond. His preliminary hearing was set for Oct. 29.

Ford fails to quiet pardon controversy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's historic testimony on his pardon for former President Richard M. Nixon has drawn high praise from congressmen for candor, but sharp disagreement on whether he laid the pardon controversy to rest.

Ford assured a House Judiciary subcommittee and a nationwide television audience Thursday "there was no deal, period" for the pardon and said he is convinced he did not grant it too hastily.

Subcommittee members split afterwards on whether Ford's testimony settled the matter, and Chairman William L. Hungate, D-Mo., said the inquiry on the pardon may continue after Congress returns Nov. 18 from its election campaign recess.

Winter auto tips featured Sunday

The Democrat-Capital's annual "winter car care" section will be published this Sunday.

Designed to help the average motorists, the section is devoted to such topics as emission control, winter safety tips, gasoline saving hints and other useful information.

For those drivers who often find winter driving both a chore and a source of worry, this section should prove of value. Watch this Sunday for this informative special section.

Subcommittee Democrats called for more witnesses involved in the pardon consultations, including former White House chief of staff Alexander M. Haig Jr., Ford counsel Phillip Buchen and possibly outgoing special Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

Apparent violation of orders is noted

On at least two occasions, suspended Chief of Police William Miller has apparently gone contrary to an order he received from Mayor Jerry Jones last week in frequenting the police station, a reliable source has told The Democrat-Capital.

The source said that on Saturday morning Miller met with Det. Sgt. Perry Franklin in the office of acting Chief of Police Charles Knapp. It was also reported that Miller and Franklin met and talked at the station the previous Thursday. The nature of the discussions could not be determined.

Jones told The Democrat-Capital that he had given Miller permission to go to the police station Thursday, the day after his suspension, to pick up some "personal effects." He said Knapp told him he asked Miller to come down last Saturday "to help him locate a record."

When informed of the reported meetings between Miller and Franklin, Jones said this would also be in violation of his written order to Miller, which specified that Miller could only visit the police station under circumstances that would lead the average citizen to do so. He said Knapp received a copy of the order.

A second order from Jones, that Miller's mobile police radio be deactivated, has evidently been carried out by Central Communications Service Co. Inc. which services police radios. Knapp said the radio was deactivated, but is still in Miller's private car.

Knapp would not comment when asked if former police officers Charles Shepard and Robert Lewis had been at the police station since they were named as being involved in 44 burglaries in the city in 1968, while they were on the police force.

That revelation was made when Jones released 10 charges that are now pending

Emigration accord with Soviet Union announced

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., announced today at the White House what he described as a historic step aimed at ensuring free emigration from the Soviet Union of at least 60,000 persons a year.

The accord involving Congress, the Ford administration and the Soviet Union, also opens the way for congressional passage of major trade legislation and ends a two-year fight by Jackson and others to liberalize Soviet emigration policies.

Following a half-hour meeting with Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, Jackson was given the use of a White House podium to unveil a six-point agreement outlined in an exchange of correspondence between him and Kissinger.

The White House made no announcement of its own and all press releases distributed there on the matter were from Jackson's office.

In essence, Jackson and other proponents of freer Soviet emigration agreed to an 18-month trial period during which the new Soviet policies will be implemented and, in return, Congress will authorize the granting of tariff concessions and credits to the Soviets.

Noting that Congress can end the arrangement after 18 months if it feels the Soviets are not upholding their part of the bargain, Jackson told reporters, "I think the safeguards are more than adequate."

In a letter to Jackson, Kissinger wrote, "I should like, on behalf of the administration, to inform you that we have been assured that the following criteria and practices will henceforth govern emigration from the USSR."

Kissinger listed six points.

Jackson, Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., have been working to formulate final legislative language for the compromise accord, seeking to spell out an acceptable level of Soviet Jewish emigration and provide assurances that the Soviets will cease harassing persons seeking to leave.

The points listed by Kissinger were:

1. "Punitive actions against individuals seeking to emigrate from the USSR would be violations of Soviet laws and regulations and will therefore not be permitted ..."

2. "No unreasonable or unlawful impediments will be placed in the way of persons desiring to make application for emigration ..."

3. "Applications for emigration will be processed in order of receipt, including those previously filed, and on a non-discriminatory basis as regards the place of residence, race, religion, national origin and professional status of the applicant."

4. "Hardship cases will be processed sympathetically and expeditiously ..."

5. "The collection of the so-called emigration tax on emigrants which was suspended last year will remain suspended."

6. "With respect to all the foregoing points, we will be in a position to bring to the attention of the Soviet leadership indications that we may have that these criteria and practices are not being applied. Our representations ... will receive sympathetic consideration and response."

Ford reluctantly initials compromise

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford today signed "with serious reservations" a compromise bill that postponed until Dec. 10 a ban on military aid to Turkey while attempts are made to negotiate a Cyprus dispute.

Ford said in a statement he considered the action of Congress "ill-advised and dangerous" but he signed the measure because Congress "has eased the most troublesome of the earlier restrictions."

As a result of signing of the continuing resolution, funds for the operations of several departments and agencies, held up for three weeks, can now be released.

Ford twice vetoed similar versions of this bill because he said it would impede U.S. efforts at diplomatic negotiations to reach a settlement in Cyprus.

He was still dissatisfied and said: "Whatever we can still do to assist in resolving the Cyprus dispute will be done. But if we fail despite our best efforts, those in Congress who over-rode the congressional leadership must bear the full responsibility for that failure."

The compromise was worked out after the House failed Thursday for the second time in a week to override Ford's veto of a normally routine funding resolution. The Turkey military aid ban was attached to the resolution.

The House vote on the veto was 161 to 83, two short of the two-thirds majority required to override. The compromise was passed by the House 191 to 33 and in the Senate by voice vote.

Both houses of Congress then closed up shop for a 32-day recess until after the Nov. 5 election, when they will return to tackle unfinished business, including appropriations for several major government departments.

Final action on the money resolution and the President's agreement to sign it took the squeeze off thousands of government employees who had been facing payless paydays next week.

The resolution provides funding authority to operate agencies for which regular appropriation bills have not been passed.

Study indicates mental retardation higher in lead mining district

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Preliminary findings of a medical researcher at the University of Missouri here indicate that persons living in the lead mining district of southeast Missouri, especially children, may be highly susceptible to mental retardation.

Dr. Mostafa Fahim of the university medical school's department of obstetrics and gynecology, also said his research, which he emphasized is strictly preliminary, shows there may be some correlation between living in the world's largest lead mining district and the health of pregnant women.

"The indications are that lead has something to do with it," he said. "But it may not only be lead, maybe it's malnutrition, maybe it's cadmium, maybe it's other factors. I don't know."

His research has shown, however, that the instance of persons being handicapped, including those stricken with mental retardation, under 21 years old in lead belt counties is as much as four times higher than the statewide average of 7.5 per cent.

Carter County had an over-all under-21 handicapped population of 28.7 per cent and Wayne and Madison counties, 16 per cent each, Fahim said.

He also noted that while the statewide average of emotionally disturbed persons under 21 is only .67 per cent, Carter County had a 3.7 per cent rate and Wayne a 1.6 per cent rate.

Those classified as educationally retarded statewide comprised only 1.7 per cent while Carter showed an 8.1 per cent total and Madison a 2.5 per cent total, he said.

Fahim said the average age of the handicapped persons in those counties is 12 to 14 years old, about half the statewide average of 26 years old, "and it appears to be getting younger."

Contributing to his belief that living in the lead district may contribute to mental retardation is the data Fahim obtained through a study of 500 pregnant women.

He said 17 per cent of those from the lead belt area experienced membranes rupture during their pregnancy, while a similar group in central Missouri's Boone County recorded only a .8 per cent rate. Fahim said that if a child is not delivered within 24 hours after the membranes rupture, infection can set in and a baby has a greater chance of being mentally retarded.

That study also showed, he said, that 13 per cent of the lead belt area sample had premature babies while only 1 per cent of the women outside the lead belt experienced premature births.

"The chance of the unborn baby to be mentally retarded is high in the lead areas," Fahim said, "and we have to find out why."

State Public Health Director Dr. Herbert Domke has said there is no indication that the problem of high metal levels in the blood streams of children, experienced most recently in Kellogg, Idaho, and two years ago in El Paso, Tex., exists in Missouri. But he agreed that Fahim's preliminary findings bear further study.

"It's the kind of study that very well may need some more follow up," he said, but he quickly added that based on information available to his department, "there is no obvious long-standing maternal and child health problem in that general area. And I can say that with confidence. Missouri has been a major lead producer for a long time."

Fahim, who said he has been financing his five years of research on the subject out of his own pocket, said he has sought research grants from both the National Institute of Health and the March of Dimes Foundation, but has been turned down by both.

Local and district health officials in the lead mining area confirm Domke's report that there has been no longstanding health problems that can be related to lead, and a blood sampling taken of lead district residents about three years ago showed no abnormal metal levels in their blood.

The fact that southeast Missouri contains three of the nation's six primary lead smelters has made the state Air Con-

Vatican changes policy

By GEORGE CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Roman Catholic laymen, barred from belonging to Masonic lodges for more than two centuries, now may do so without church objections so long as the particular lodge doesn't foster anti-Catholicism.

That's the interpretation put by U.S. Catholic leadership on a recent letter from the Vatican's office on doctrinal matters.

The step comes after several years of exploratory friendly gestures between some American Catholic leaders and Masonic groups, chiefly sessions arranged by the Rev. John A. O'Brien of the University of Notre Dame.

Father O'Brien, recently hospitalized with a stroke, became the first Catholic priest to speak at a Masonic meeting in 1964 in South Bend, Ind., and afterward took part in similar conciliatory gatherings in the rising ecumenical mood of the period, saying:

"We're all children of the same Father, and it's about time that we put our brotherhood into practice."

Freemasonry, an international fraternal order open to all believers in God, includes about 4 million Masons in this country, with lodges in each state operating under an independent, statewide grand lodge.

Although some Catholics previously have been members, despite the broad church prohibition against it, the new ruling limits application of the ban only to cases in which a specific lodge opposes the church.

Holding Service

The Maplewood Church will be the host of a recording artist calling himself David at 7:30 p.m. Sunday. He has been the guest soloist with many evangelists and has appeared before religious groups throughout the country. He will conduct the whole service.

The letter, from the Vatican's Cardinal Franjo Seper, says that the church's canon 2335 still stands, subjecting Catholics to excommunication if they join Masonic or other associations which "plot" against the church.

But he adds that it may be given a "strict interpretation," that is, applied only in instances of specific lodges where such anti-Catholicism exists.

The ban against Catholic membership first was imposed by Pope Clement XII in 1738 on grounds that Freemasonry fostered vague, naturalistic religion, and involved secret oaths and conspiracy against Catholicism.

Over the years, there has been a succession of papal condemnations, proscribing Catholic participation.

A statement from John Cardinal Krol, of Philadelphia, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, says the Vatican letter makes clear that the longstanding prohibition is not equally applicable to all Masonic groups.

As the letter indicates, he says, the "canonical provision concerning excommunication is to be interpreted precisely, not broadly, in the light of the actual attitude and practice of a particular Masonic or other group."

However, he said the letter shows that the "church continues to discourage Catholic membership in the Masons," and to excommunicate those joining societies that are "actively hostile to the church."

Cases against five men are continued here

The cases against five Sedalia men charged with violation of liquor laws were continued Friday morning in Sedalia Municipal Court until Nov. 29.

Thomas E. Klein, 24, 2801 West Lake, manager of the business, was charged with remaining open after closing hours and the sale and consumption of intoxicating liquors after closing. The same charges were filed against Dennis H. Vinson, 22, 1805 South Park, the bartender at the business.

Three other men were charged with consuming intoxicating liquors after closing: Robert W. Moon, 25, 1325 East Ninth; Edwin G. Scott, 27, Route 2; and Robert R. Whiteman, 37, 1803 South Waggoner. Whiteman was also held for investigation of possession of a controlled substance.

Police reported that while on patrol, officers saw cars parked at the tavern. Officers were then granted entrance to the business and reportedly saw liquor being consumed.

Police reported that they had received reports that the bar was staying open after 1:30 a.m., the legal closing time, and have been watching the establishment.

All except Whiteman had been released at noon Friday on bond. Whiteman was being held pending further investigation.

President signs housing measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford signed into law today a bill he said will provide a shot in the arm to the crippled housing industry.

The brief signing ceremony thus moved into place the first component in the economic program Ford proposed last week.

The bill authorizes $7.75 billion in federal money to help home buyers obtain loans at below-market rates. Ford had said earlier he intends to use $3 billion of that as soon as possible. That would be enough for 100,000 home mortgages.

The housing industry is currently at the bottom of a slump in activity which began in October 1972 when the industry was starting the annual equivalent of 2.51 million new housing units.

against Miller and which lead to his suspension without pay.

One source reported, however, that Shepard was at the police station about noon Saturday. It was not known why he was there, or whom he met. Lewis was also reported seen in the company of a police officer.

The charges against Miller, read at a press conference, make allegations ranging from failure to press charges against Lewis and Shepard to openly ordering officers not to arrest known prostitutes.

Miller, who has denied the charges, has appealed his suspension to the Police Personnel Board. At a special meeting Monday night, the City Council set a tentative date of Oct. 29 for a public council hearing of the charges.

servation Commission concerned about possible lead-related pollutants in the air.

"All three smelters at one time or another have had their difficulties," acknowledged Air Conservation Commission Director Harvey Shell, "but all three are in compliance now with our regulations and federal air quality standards."

Shell pointed out, as have researchers at the University of Missouri's Rolla campus, that the situation involving the lead smelters is different in Missouri than in the western states.

The Missouri operations, he said, only smelt lead while those in Kellogg, El Paso and East Helena, Mont., smelt copper and zinc as well as lead.

"We believe you get more lead emissions from copper and zinc than from lead because it's harder to control emissions. You just can't compare a large smelting complex with what we have here," he contended.

Ivon Lowesley, a member of the Rolla research team looking into effects on the environment of smelter emissions, also

Economic development group to discuss steps

The steps to be taken by the City Economic Development board, regarding the future of the economic development director's position, will be discussed at next Monday's pre-City Council meeting, board chairman Don Broadus said Thursday.

Broadus made the announcement at a special meeting of the board, held in the Municipal Building. The meeting was called in the wake of a decision Wednesday by Dana Rotegard, Minneapolis, not to accept the position for which he had been approved by a majority of the council Oct. 7.

Broadus, who also is a First Ward Councilman, told the board he has received a resume from another applicant for the position. However, he added, "Unless some of the Democrats who are opposed to this would change their minds, I can't see any point in asking any more people to come here for an interview."

Rotegard's appointment was approved by a 4-3 council vote along party lines, with Republicans favoring the appointment and Democrats opposing it. Third Ward Democratic Councilman Carl Franklin was absent from the meeting.

"It's almost an emergency. We must do something, whether it's subsidizing the chamber or using individual efforts," Broadus said. "We have to do something to get somebody in that job — even if it's a part-time position."

Third Ward Democrat Bob Wells, a board member, said he is opposed to hiring an economic development director. "In the reports I've seen ... I can't see that much of an accomplishment for the money spent in the past. I think in the last few years, we've wasted a lot of money in this department."

The board decided that a list of possibilities in handling the situation should be presented to the council Monday.

The possibilities included a change in the vote of one or more of the Democrats opposing a fulltime director; hiring a part-time person to fill the vacancy; subsidizing the Chamber of Commerce to allow Larry Melton, Chamber director, to take on additional responsibilities of soliciting industry for Sedalia; offering Mayor Jerry Jones a part-time position as director; stopping all efforts secure a director for Sedalia; or changing the city ordinance that governs the council's approval of a fulltime director.

According to Broadus, the vote of four council members and the Mayor's is needed to change the present ordinance which, states that the mayor cannot cast a tie-breaking vote on hiring a director.

New Mexico holding Smithton youths in truck theft

Felony charges of tampering with a motor vehicle were filed in Pettis County Magistrate Court Friday against Carl Dalton, 17, and Michael Kearney, 17, both of Smithton. The two are being held in Albuquerque, N. M., after being arrested by New Mexico State Police Monday.

They allegedly took a 1966 Chevrolet pickup from L and M Construction Co. about Oct. 13. When stopped by the New Mexico police, they were driving the truck.

Prosecuting Attorney Gary Fleming said the federal attorney in Albuquerque had "declined prosecution against them. I think it had something to do with their ages."

The two could have been charged with interstate transportation of a stolen vehicle, a felony.

Fleming said the federal prosecutor probably felt state charges against them would have as much affect as federal charges.

Dalton and Kearney can now either waive extradition or be extradited back to Missouri.

pointed out that few persons live on the downwind side of the smelters at Herculeaneum, Glover and Bixby while in the Kellogg case people lived all around the smelters.

He also pointed out, along with Shell, the apparent readiness to cooperate with anti-pollution efforts of the three companies—St. Joseph Mineral Co., the American Smelting and Refining Co., and the Amax Mining Co.

"When you get into this entire area, there are so many unanswered questions, and industry's between a rock and a hard place," Lowesley said. "They don't know a lot of times that what they're doing is harmful until the research is done."

Shell has expressed interest in Fahim's preliminary findings and he also has sought official information concerning the findings in the Idaho incident.

"We're not living in a vacuum here," he said. "We are aware of the situations in other parts of the country and we have looked into this ... but as far as I'm concerned, from the literature we have and from talking with the (U.S.) Environmental Protection Agency, our regulations are good enough."

Workshop has felt pinch of economy

A total of 32 employees of the joint Sheltered Workshop program in Sedalia and Marshall were dismissed during the past month because of the cancellation of several work contracts, program manager Roger Garlich said Friday.

Between 12 and 13 of the workers, however, recently were called back. The unemployment, Garlich said, was primarily due to the fact that "some of the work agreements that we had earlier entered into have fallen by the wayside."

One of the contracts that was voided, he said, was with the Permaneer Corp., which closed Oct. 11 due to economic difficulties. Workshop employees had sacked nails and hardware for the company.

"Permaneer has been one of our program's best supporters, but things like this just happen," Garlich said. "We're grateful for all the work opportunities given us over the years by this company, but now we're looking for work from somebody else."

Another cancelled contract was with the St. Regis Paper Co., Kansas City, Garlich said. Workers had inserted plastic liners in bags manufactured by the firm.

Garlich termed the layoffs "temporary" and added "we're set up as a business, just like any other, and when there are no longer work orders coming in you have to adjust accordingly."

Contracts for work have recently been made with the Parkhurst Manufacturing Co. and the McGraw-Edison Co., Boonville, he said. A third new contract has been tentatively agreed upon, Garlich added. He declined to identify the firm, pending final confirmation and approval.

The employee lay-offs have been only in the program's two "bench work" divisions involving sub-contract work to other companies. The local bench work operation is headquartered in a new building adjoining the Children's Therapy Center, 600 East 14th. It's a maximum employe force of 28 persons has been reduced to between seven and eight as of Friday.

The program's two "pilot" operations in Sedalia and Marshall, in which wooden articles are manufactured in a prime contract agreement, have not been affected.

Full employment at the two bench work shops, Garlich indicated, will be restored at a gradual level as the contracted work load increases.

ASCS now accepting nominations

Nominations for the 1974 county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) committee election, to be held Nov. 22 to Dec. 2, are now being accepted at the county ASCS office in the Federal Building, county ASCS executive director Dick Dalton announced Thursday.

In order to be valid, the nomination petitions must include written certification that the nominated farmer will serve if elected. They must also be signed by three eligible farm voters in the district the farmer is nominated to represent. Finally, the petitions must be received by the county ASCS office by Oct. 29.

Three committeemen and two alternates will be selected from each of the following ASCS districts in the county: Blackwater-LaMonte, Cedar-Sedalia-Bowling Green, Dresden-Prairie, Green Ridge-Elk Fork, Heath Creek-Longwood, Hughesville-Houstonia, Smithton-Lake Creek, and Washington-Flat Creek. A minimum of six candidates must be nominated to represent each district, Dalton said.

The committee members, who will take office Jan. 2 for a one-year term, are responsible for managing government farm programs on the local level, Dalton explained.

Army opens Truman Dam highway bids

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Army's district engineer has opened bids on almost $7.2 million worth of highway work to make way for the waters to be backed up when the Truman Dam is completed late in the 1970s at Warsaw.

Massman Construction Co. of Kansas City submitted the apparent low bid of $2,075,000 for slope protection work along 2.6 miles of Highway 13 between Clinton and Deepwater.

The highway already has been relocated on a high fill. The new project will mend some erosion damage and line the embankment with more than 300,000 tons of rock.

The second lowest bid was $2,585,000 and the highest of five others was $4,696,000.

The other project involves the relocation of two farm-to-market roads in St. Clair County near Osceola and Roscoe. The 2.2 miles of work on Route E near Roscoe and 1.8 miles on Route B west of Osceola include three steel bridges and a concrete bridge.

Arrowhead Design and Construction Co. of Deepwater was the apparent low bidder on this phase at $5,090,000. The next lowest of the five bids was $5,185,000 and the highest $6,022,000.

Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Body needs the mineral elements

Dear Dr. Lamb — Can a person's body use the minerals contained in water? I have been told that these are inorganic minerals and that the body can use only organic minerals. Do these minerals collect in our bodies to help form gallstones and cause arthritis? Also, would it be beneficial to drink only distilled water?

Dear Reader — You have been listening to some dangerously ill-informed people. Do not take any health advice from that source.

You must have inorganic minerals for life. Sodium from salt, potassium and all of the elements essential to life are inorganic minerals. You have to have calcium for your bones and even the function of your heart and nerves. These inorganic minerals are exactly the same element whether the sodium, potassium, iron, copper or calcium comes from water, in vegetables, from an iron cooking pot or another source. Some people don't realize that an element is an element wherever it is found.

Your healthy body regulates these inorganic minerals so that you have the right amount of calcium, iron, sodium, potassium and other elements in your body. Even the amount of pure water in the body is regulated by the body itself. Having these necessary items in your diet or water in no way contributes to gallstones or arthritis in healthy people.

You do not need to drink distilled water for your health. Your city water, properly treated by the city to prevent bacteria in your water, is the safest of all water immediately available to you. If you drink bottled water, you must keep it relatively sterile or you will have to boil it to protect yourself from germs. Germs, not minerals, are the big problem here.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am a married woman, 40 years old, an office worker in fairly good health. I have no varicose veins and am not overweight, however, I am getting a little heavy through the waistline. So,

I purchased a 10-speed racer bicycle to ride the six miles home from work, in hopes that the exercise would keep me in shape.

I took a week to gradually work up to riding the six miles. But, after about 10 days many, many bruises appeared all over my legs, and particularly on the sides and back of my knees.

Have some of the tiny veins in my legs ruptured due to the strain? I'm worried. Could this cause me to develop varicose veins or harm me in some way?

With the many people taking up bicycling these days, I feel sure it would be of interest to many.

Dear Reader — If those little veins ruptured from your exercise, you already had a problem. Unless you bump or bruise the legs, exercise should not cause varicose veins or rupture of the small veins.

Exercising the legs actually pumps the blood uphill out of the veins in the legs and toward the heart. The contraction of the muscles around the deep veins in the legs actually milks the blood out of the legs. The truth then is that exercise of this nature should decrease the pressure in the veins and help prevent problems.

You need to look to some other cause for your problem. Compression of the veins in the leg for some reason might be a factor. Or, it could be coincidental. If you have no good reason for the bruises, you should see a doctor and let him make some tests.

Young couples needs birth control method

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 17-year-old high school senior who needs an answer. I hope you will print the advice because there is no way I can risk getting a letter with such information in the mail. My mother would surely open it and all hell would break loose.

My steady and I have been going together for 14 months. We started to have sex three months ago. Please don't tell me to stop because we tried to three times and it's impossible. We even made promises to each other and took an oath on the Bible. It didn't help.

What I need to know is this: When is the safest time for me to have intercourse because I sure don't want to get pregnant. I hope you won't suggest Planned Parenthood or anything that has to do with birth control. It is against my religion. Also, my boy friend thinks (and I agree) that any artificial methods would cheapen the beautiful love we have for each other. Please, Ann, try to understand and help us. — Very Anonymous

Dear V.A.: What you are already doing is against your religion, Dummy. I wish you both lots of luck if you continue to play Vatican Roulette because you're certainly going to need it. The rhythm system is the least safe way to prevent pregnancy. (In fact, at least 15 per cent of the time it doesn't work.)

The system has to be worked out with a professional, according to each woman's cycle. The problem lies in the fact that most women's cycles are somewhat irregular. If a woman miscalculates by even one day she has a new name. It is "Mother." My advice is to go to Planned Parenthood or your family doctor and not take any more foolish chances.

Dear Ann Landers: My mother had a beautiful gold bracelet. Since I was the only daughter, it was natural for her to promise it to me. Whenever she wore that bracelet, she mentioned that one day it would be mine.

A few weeks ago Mother passed away. The gold bracelet was not with the rest of her things when the family gathered to divide her few meaningful possessions. No one seemed to know anything about it.

Last week I learned my brother had given the bracelet to his 13-year-old daughter. That brat never gave two hoots for her grandmother. She was a rude and disrespectful child. Today when I saw her wearing the lovely bracelet, my blood began to boil. What should I do? — Out

Dear O.: Tell your brother the bracelet was promised to you and you'd like to have it. Too bad your mother didn't put the promise in writing. She could have prevented what is sure to be a great deal of unpleasantness.

Dear Ann: I know you aren't a doctor but you have good connection. Here's the problem. When I get tense I perspire profusely, especially my hands. It's very embarrassing when I'm in a group and have to shake hands, especially in a receiving line. I wore cotton gloves once and felt very out-of-place because no other woman had gloves on.

Three doctors have given me medication but nothing works. I would bless you forever if you could suggest something. — Wringing Wet

Dear Wet: Your problem is not uncommon. It is called hyperhidrosis. Some drugs give relief but the side effects may cause problems. If you've seen three doctors I suggest you see one more, a dermatologist. If he is persistent he may hit on the drug or combination of drugs that will solve your problem without creating new ones.

Confidential to Should We Or Shouldn't We: Do as you please, but I offer you Florida

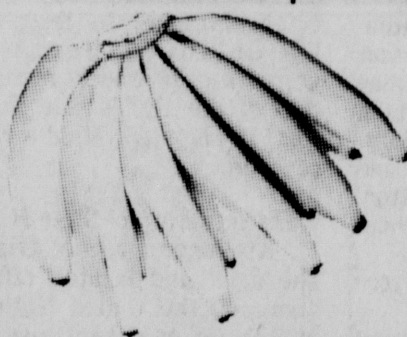

Governor Ruebin Askew's priceless remark: "We don't serve alcoholic beverages in the mansion and it's amazing how early people go home when you don't serve them liquor."

Even if drinking is the "in" thing in your crowd, it needn't crowd you out. Learn the facts from Ann Landers' booklet, "Booze and You — For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Bicentennial planning is started in Sedalia

The Sedalia American Revolution Bicentennial Commission began preliminary plans for the 1976 bicentennial celebration at an organizational meeting Thursday night at the Chamber of Commerce building.

The commission elected its officers and established a purpose, structure and policy to be submitted to the Missouri American Revolution Bicentennial Commission for approval. This approval is required in order for Sedalia to be recognized as an official charter city in connection with the statewide project.

The commission described its function as a group designed to "encourage, promote and supervise bicentennial activities in Sedalia... and to act as an advisory and sanctioning body for various interest groups in the community."

According to Dr. Gary Evert, chairman, the commission "is not an activist group... we're here to coordinate the projects."

Evert explained that Sedalia also has an advisory committee which includes persons who are not in a position to serve regularly or actively, but who can lend expertise in arranging activities.

Evert said the commission plans to make applications available to local interest groups so they may submit, in writing, bicentennial project ideas for the commission's approval.

He said the commission also will encourage local groups to take on specific projects dealing with three official bicentennial national themes. The themes include Horizons, a permanent structure for Sedalia; Heritage, events dealing with local history; and local festivals.

Evert added that "bicentennial activities in Sedalia will only be as successful as the community makes them. It's Sedalia's project."

Officers elected by the commission were Evert, chairman, Hazel Gray, secretary, and Merlyn Shephard, treasurer.

Commission members appointed to committees include Scott Allen, Selvin Royal, horizons; Betty Maxwell, Dorothy Kitchen, heritage; Jake Siragusa, Mrs. Abe Rosenthal, festival; Shephard, finance; and Lynn Harrison and Don Morton, communications.

Chairman Raquel

Actress Raquel Welch talked to newsmen in New York Thursday after it was announced she will serve as chairman of the 1975 American Cancer Crusade. Miss Welch walked out of the news conference at one point when asked if her sex-symbol movie image was too frivolous for her role as chairman.

Renewed school spirit principal's top goal

Kem Keithly, the new principal of Smith-Cotton High School, said Thursday one of his goals is the rebuilding of spirit, pride and tradition at the high school.

He spoke before the Sedalia Kiwanis Club at its luncheon at the Bothwell Hotel.

Keithly said school spirit has been "a thing of the past" nationwide for the last four or five years "as the problems of our society spilled over into the public schools."

"Our students... are beginning to get ahold of themselves lately," said Keithly. "I think it's a good trend, but it's moving very slowly."

School spirit is difficult to engender in a larger institution such as Smith-Cotton, said Keithly, but he added that the high school has a great "tradition" that can be built upon.

Better school spirit and a sense of pride will spread out and improve the community as a whole, Keithly added.

Dr. Allan Henningsen, superintendent of schools, added that the high school is making a concerted effort to "empathize and identify" with students. He said he did not agree that the school has been deficient in this area in the past, as do some, but that the district would work to change that impression all the same.

Keithly said other areas he is currently working in include re-evaluation of curriculum, class scheduling and utilization of a principal's advisory committee composed of students, parents and teachers.

Touching on the drug problem in schools, Keithly said, "I think the drug problem is society's problem." He said he knew there was some drug usage and sale at the high school, adding: "It would be naive of me to say we don't have any students using drugs."

He said a new drug education program prepared by assistant superintendent Earl Finley would soon be incorporated into the high school curriculum.

"I'm very much pleased and impressed" by Smith-Cotton, said Keithly, who came here from Lamar, Mo.

The Rev. Robert Magee introduced the program.

Bill Almquist was also a guest of Magee.

Business mirror

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Few people waste any sympathy on electric utilities. Utilities always are big and impersonal, and often they are over-computerized and unresponsive. Many critics claim they are poorly managed.

The product they supply is taken for granted, and their bills therefore usually seem excessive. They are unwelcome neighbors too, accused of erecting ugly, even dangerous plants, and of polluting the air and water.

Their image often is that of self-interest and arrogance, a perception sometimes reinforced by appearances and actions. They often are nepotistic. It is assumed by cynics that they have compromised the power regulators.

Even their investors seldom have anything nice to say to them, at least of a personal nature. Occasionally they are complimented on the regularity and size of their dividends, but usually that is expected of utilities.

But now the utilities need sympathy. The mighty mastodons of industry have fallen into a trap that seems to get deeper the harder they try to escape.

See if you can solve the puzzle:

1. Because of the expensive equipment needed to operate utilities, they are very heavy borrowers. Interest rates have risen sharply, greatly adding to their costs. In some instances this forces them to borrow even more.

2. Their credit rating falls, forcing them to pay more.

3. They consider cutting dividends, but this would lead inevitably to lower stock prices, thus eliminating or reducing that source of capital.

4. Having no choice, the utility skips the dividend, which automatically forecloses the likelihood that it can offer a new issue of stock. If customers don't like the existing stock — and some analysts don't — why should investors be interested in more shares?

5. Meanwhile, the price of fuel continues rising. Switch to other cheaper fuels? The environmentalists won't like that. Raise prices? Yes, even if it offends customers.

6. The customers cut back on their usage. Financing is further disrupted.

7. Burdened with ill will, insufficient revenues, an unsympathetic bond market and a disinterested stock market, the utilities postpone construction.

8. In so doing they generate great problems for the future. Utility plants become worn out and outmoded. Old plants can't use new fuels. They are costly to operate and maintain. They break down.

If you believe there is no resolution of the scenario, you might add these possibilities:

1. Shrinking profits look increasingly unattractive to investors. Brownouts demon-

Study urges all-out conservation of fuel

WASHINGTON (AP) — A two-year study says the energy crisis can be beaten by all-out conservation instead of all-out fuel production, avoiding the need to strip-mine the West or to drill for oil off Atlantic beaches.

The report, issued Thursday by the Ford Foundation's Energy Policy Project, sharply challenged the present government inclination toward energy development. It was attacked immediately by the oil industry.

The American Petroleum Institute said reliance on energy conservation would be a reckless gamble. The president of Mobil Oil Corp. called it "a formula for perpetual economic stagnation."

However, the report anticipated and rejected such charges.

It urged cutting the growth rate of U.S. energy consumption in half, from the historic 4 per cent to about 2 per cent a year.

This could be done by more efficient use of energy, it said. Even at the lower growth rate, U.S. energy supply in 1985 would have to increase 28 per cent above last year's level, the report said.

But it added that low growth "will make unnecessary additional developments which threaten serious environmental damage or increased oil imports which pose foreign policy concerns."

The report said energy cuts need not lead to economic stagnation.

It claimed the nation could even adopt a policy of zero energy growth beyond 1985 without harming standards of living.

"We can level off energy consumption and continue with an economy in which consumer well-being continues to improve," it said.

A major government study of energy policy is due for delivery in early November. But federal agencies already are deep in preparations to lease areas off the Atlantic, Pacific and Alaskan coasts for petroleum drilling, to strip-mine coal and oil shale in the West, and to speed development and construction of atomic power plants.

The report described these energy sources as "troublesome," charging they present serious environmental and safety problems.

It said the nation could meet its needs without them, partly by developing present energy sources and partly through conservation.

Cooperation cited for world political climate

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim says the political climate of the world is better now than it has been for two decades, despite serious regional conflicts and economic problems.

Waldheim told visiting journalists from the World Press Institute that the improved atmosphere largely is due to co-operation between the world's big powers, a policy he feels will continue.

"The big powers know very well that a new worldwide confrontation would be detrimental to all of them," he said. "This gives me the impression that we won't have worldwide confrontation in the next years or the near future."

"This will reflect positively on the world situation and on the future of the great majority of small and medium-sized countries."

Waldheim said that one regional problem that persists is in the Middle East. He said the General Assembly's decision Monday to hear the Palestine Liberation Organization reflects recognition of the PLO's role in efforts to solve the Middle East problem.

On Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's recent trip to the area and related efforts there by the United Nations, Waldheim said he hopes the efforts would bring about renewed Geneva peace talks to work out a solution.

The secretary-general warned, however, against over-optimism. He said, "Many more efforts and a lot of good will on all sides" will be needed to produce an agreement.

"I can only hope we will be able to achieve a breakthrough leading to lasting peace in the area...."

American Royal queen selected

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Shannon Linnell Simonson, 18, a University of North Dakota freshman, is the 1974 American Royal queen.

Miss Simonson, of Grand Forks, N.D., was chosen Thursday night from among 21 candidates from California to Vermont, most of them with backgrounds in agriculture.

The panel of judges included Jack Ford, 22, son of President Gerald R. Ford, and Mrs. Earl Butz, wife of the secretary of agriculture.

Chosen as princesses were Catherine Jean McCosh of Abilene, Kan., and Sarah Jo Denney, Carrollton, Ga.

Miss Simonson will reign over the nine-day American Royal Live Stock and Horse Show which opens today.

Otherwise, I feel the situation will be critical again next year," Waldheim said.

In other disputed areas, Waldheim noted that the rival sides on Cyprus are meeting generally once a week to iron out their problems.

But he regretted that fighting has continued in South Vietnam despite the ceasefire signed in Paris more than 20 months ago.

Man booked for murder, assault

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Willie Wilson, 25, has been booked suspected murder and assault with intent to kill in a Wednesday night shooting incident that left one man dead and three persons wounded, police said.

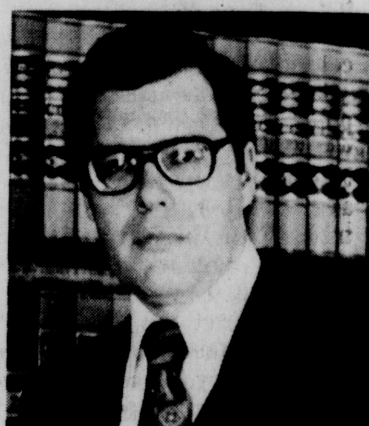

Johnny Fedrick, 24, was fatally wounded when two men stepped out of a north side garage and began firing sawed off shotguns at him and three other persons, police said.

Reform residents resigned to construction of plant

By BOB FICK
Associated Press Writer

REFORM, Mo. (AP) — "What's the point of worrying. There isn't anything we can do about it."

Mrs. Kenneth Powers stood in the doorway of her single-level home, holding her baby and summarizing the feelings of her neighbors in the small hamlet of Reform, tucked away in the rolling hills of central Missouri just north of the Missouri River.

The Union Electric Co., of St. Louis has filed for an application to build a major nuclear power plant here, the first in the state, and the Missouri Public Service Commission will begin public hearings this afternoon on whether to give the utility authority to construct the $1.6 billion project.

Gift is finally accepted

WASHINGTON (AP) — After 97 years, Congress finally has accepted a massive gift of 19th century memorabilia but it has to wait until July 4, 1976, to be sure exactly what it contains.

The gift is an iron safe more than 5 feet high, 4 feet wide and 3½ feet deep, packed — according to the best available information — with mementoes of the 1876 national centennial celebration.

Congress has had physical possession of the safe since 1877 when Mrs. Charles F. Deihm of New York, described in records as a publisher, a dedicated patriot and a Civil War widow, turned it over with the materials she had toured the country to collect. She requested that it be opened on the bicentennial day by the president.

Congress, however, did not show itself exactly enchanted with her donation. It refused to allow the safe to be exhibited in the Capitol's Statuary Hall, moved it to semi-exposed storage where the weather worked on it for 80 years, and currently keeps it in a dusty storeroom.

In the past two days, however, the lawmakers made amends. First the House, then the Senate, adopted a resolution accepting the gift with thanks and directing that it be publicly displayed in the Capitol pending its ceremonial opening.

The safe was on view at the Philadelphia Centennial Exposition of 1876 and, according to records compiled by the Capitol architect, contains a number of autographs, a literary collection including poetry, fiction and a book on temperance, a roster containing the names of 300,000 government employees, and a gold-lined silver inkstand with two gold and pearl pens — for autographs.

The Powers' 37-acre tract is about a mile west of the site for the two 1.15 million kilowatt power units that are expected to be in service by 1983. The location is only a 30-minute drive from the state Capitol.

She said they have not been told they'll have to move, but the company has already acquired most of the 6,600 acres of land from about 35 families for construction of the plant if it's approved.

And there appears to be little doubt of that in the minds of the residents of Reform.

"There's not a doubt in my mind that it'll be approved," said Jewel Holland, operator of the general store, as she pointed through the store's front windows at the field to the southwest where the major generating units will stand.

"They wouldn't be spending all the money if they weren't sure they'd get the okay," she said. One of the two giant cooling towers for the operation will stand where the store has stood since 1902 when the plant is completed.

But Mrs. Holland said nobody in town opposes construction of the plant and she emphasized that the people from Union Electric "have been real nice" as well as fair to the residents of Reform.

Her general store and its two gasoline pumps, out front, located on a sharp bend in County Route DD, is the only commercial building still left in Reform, a town more than a century old that got its name from a group of religious reformers passing through in the 1800s, so the story goes.

The post office, a saloon, a blacksmith's shop and the school have all been gone for years, but the city limit signs along the blacktop road still stand and in the last few years the town has gotten some newcomers, people moving to the country to get away from the city, Mrs. Holland said.

Since the announcement more than a year ago that Reform would be the location of the plant, traffic through the community has increased with both people looking for one of the up to 1,200 construction jobs on the proposed project and company officials, who are "in and out most every week" because of preliminary work.

But now growth in Reform has stopped. Those whose land has been purchased for the plant have to be out by June 1, Mrs. Holland said, and most have already found new places to live, generally in the Callaway County area.

Mrs. Holland said, however, she and her husband have made no decisions on where to go, and neither has W. K. McCall who owns the 160-acre farm just across from the Holland store.

"You have to look at leaving with mixed feelings," McCall said outside his white frame house surrounded by colorfully leaved trees. "I've lived here off and on most of my life."

He expects to relocate in the area, probably in Fulton about 10 miles away, but acknowledged, "We haven't actively been looking, but I guess we're going to have to start pretty soon."

Those staying behind as the Powers family and Charles Akers, who owns an 82-acre farm about two miles from the site of the proposed power plant, said they have no fear about problems with radioactive leaks, having been assured by company officials as well as state and federal officials that the plant will be safe. "They've got them in other parts of the country and the people there don't seem to be worried about them," Mrs. Powers said.

The main fear for residents of Reform is that the town will be forgotten once the plant construction begins and the city limit signs are removed when the road is relocated west of the area.

"Reform's been here a long time," Mrs. Holland said. "We hope they give us some recognition. We certainly don't want the name 'Reform' to die."

But she said she wasn't sure that recognition would come, indicating the townspeople have already been advised the plant won't be named after the town.

"We just never thought it would happen to Reform."

WHAT THE BIBLE SAYS... ABOUT GRACE (Part I)
Grace is a much misunderstood subject concerning God's dealings with lost men. It is a divine revelation from God and all human hearts not having this truth of Scripture revealed to them by the Holy Spirit will be unable to fully comprehend it or to adjust themselves to its wonderful provisions.
Grace is neither love nor mercy. For in Eph. 2:4-5 all three are seen individually, in specific manners. Mercy is defined as that compassion in God which moved Him to provide a Savior for the lost. If He could have saved one person just because of his mercy alone, then the death of Christ would have been thought unnecessary. In relation to His love, it is an emotion of infinite character, the motivating purpose behind all that God does in saving a soul. Mercy and Love alone are not enough to save us. God might strongly desire to save a soul, but be totally helpless because of the claims that divine righteousness makes against sinners. God is righteous and holy and the sinner's sin is an offense to God. Only after the claims have been met can God's infinite love and mercy fulfill their desire, that of saving a soul. These claims were met in the person of the Lord Jesus Christ when He died on the cross. Once released from His Holy demands against the sinner by the sacrificial death of Christ, and that sacrifice is accepted by the sinner intelligently, then the Love of God will never be fully satisfied until He has done all He can do for the believer. The greatest thing God can do, reverently speaking, is to make someone like His Son. This is the Goal to which every Born Again Christian should be seeking. Both in this life, and in the final destiny of Heaven. Rom. 8:29; 1 John 3:2 Our Aim should be that of, "Oh to Be Like Jesus."
(Cont. next week)

FOUR THINGS GOD WANTS EVERYONE TO KNOW
ALL MEN ARE SINNERS "As it is written, there is none righteous, no not one; There is none that understandeth, there is none that seeketh after God." Romans 3:10, 11.
THERE IS A PENALTY FOR SIN "Wherefore, as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned." Romans 5:12
GOD HAS PROVIDED A WAY OF SALVATION "But God commendeth His love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us." Romans 5:8
SALVATION COMES BY ASKING GOD FOR IT "That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved. For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved." Romans 10:9, 13.

Rocky's gifts not all that innocent

WASHINGTON — A lot more than "harmless generosity" is involved in Nelson A. Rockefeller's gifts of almost $2 million to public officials and other associates.

At the very least, those huge cash gifts and "loans" that later were "forgiven" compromised public officials to the point where a special loyalty to Rockefeller could easily take precedence over a loyalty to the public interest on controversial issues.

Rowan

The former New York governor creates serious doubts about his fitness to be vice president (or president) when he acts as though he is too myopic, or the public too gullible, to see the corrupting effects of his gifts.

Rockefeller offers the totally unacceptable excuse that the recipients of his generosity were all his subordinates anyhow, so there could be no conflict of interest. Just the opposite is true.

The public interest is properly protected only where subordinates are free to disagree with the top man, and are assumed willing to resign in public protest if they feel the leader is pursuing policies that are seriously inimical to the public welfare.

William J. Ronan was loaned $550,000 by Rockefeller when Ronan was head of New York's Metropolitan Transportation Authority. The loan was turned into a "gift" during a two-week period when Ronan was not on the public payroll. How delicate!

Is anybody foolish enough to believe that Ronan could accept that kind of money from Rockefeller without putting Rockefeller's well-being ahead of most everybody else's?

Ronan was in fact involved in some cozy official maneuvers that were of great political benefit to Rockefeller. There is a smell of "payoff" that does not vanish easily.

Rockefeller offers another explanation for his gifts: he wanted to keep in public employment persons who otherwise would not have made the financial sacrifice. But there is no evidence whatever that the beneficiaries of Rockefeller's largesse were of such exceptional quality that they were indispensable. There were probably 100,000 people who could have done Ronan's job as well as he.

The public is better off "losing" the services of people who can do the public's business only if they are subsidized by private wealth — especially if the public is not told that "Official X is able to serve you because of financial assistance from Gov. Rockefeller."

The Senate Rules Committee is absolutely right to reopen hearings on Rockefeller's confirmation as vice president. For the evidence made public so far leaves little doubt that Rockefeller made improper uses of his vast wealth. Whether the Congress will find the impropriety of sufficient gravity to deny confirmation is the only thing in question.

I suspect Rockefeller was aware at the time he made some of those gifts and "loans" that he was doing something improper. But if he had doubts there, he surely could have had no doubts about the sleaziness of his brother's financing an effort to smear Arthur J. Goldberg when Goldberg ran against Rockefeller for governor in 1970.

Even when it is used cleanly, Rockefeller's great personal wealth is regarded by many as an unfair advantage in a political campaign. It becomes sinister when used in a dirty way. Rockefeller's brother, Laurance, put up $50,000 to finance a cheap, derogatory biography of Goldberg which was thrown together in a month by hatchet-for-hire writer Victor Lasky.

For more than two years this country has struggled to cleanse itself of this kind of dirty business. The Congress has passed a campaign reform law that seems to promise a new level of morality in politics. It is hard to see how Congress can remain faithful to that promise and still confirm Rockefeller.

Hen house policy set by the foxes

Everyone knows you don't hire the fox to guard the hen house. But what can you expect when the farmer who does the hiring is one of the foxes?

Well, it happens in the nation's capital, where your tax dollars are collected and spent. Congress gives federal bureaucrats the job of making the surveys to determine pay increases for 3.5 million federal civilian and military employees. The law under which the increases are computed is intended to make government salaries competitive with jobs in private industry.

Not surprisingly, under such a setup federal salaries have outstripped those of workers in private industry. An article in "Washington Report," biweekly publication of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, states:

"According to the Department of Commerce, average federal pay is $12,984 per year, or 46 per cent more than the average $8,900 received in the private sector."

"But that's not all. A Department of Labor report states that federal government fringe benefits, as a percentage of pay, are about 12 per cent greater than those workers employed in the private sector. Federal government employees, according to the report, receive better vacations, holidays, sick and leave benefits, retirement programs and health insurance programs than those employed in the private sector."

Because of rampaging inflation, which hits everyone's pocketbook, President Ford asked the Congress to delay for three months a proposed pay raise of 5.5 per cent for federal workers. The President said the action would save $700 million this year and was "essential" in the fight against inflation. Either House could override the President's action by voting to go ahead with the pay raises as scheduled for Oct. 1.

Well, what do you think the foxes did?

Ignoring the President's plea, the Senate voted 64 to 35 to go ahead with the pay raises, as scheduled.

Surprised? (U.S. Chamber of Commerce)

Kissinger supreme on foreign policy

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — For the past five years, U. S. foreign policy has been almost totally dominated by one man — Dr. Henry A. Kissinger. Inside sources, with secret documents to back up their story, have told us how he has manipulated the diplomatic strings.

Throughout the Nixon years, Kissinger steadfastly maintained to inquiring reporters that he never recommended policy to the President unless his views were solicited. He merely presented "options," he vowed, and left it to the chief to make the decisions.

It was said President Nixon would retire to the solitude of the Lincoln sitting room or to his secluded office in the White House annex, where he would pore over his options. After much agonizing and scratching on yellow legal pads, he would emerge and announce his momentous decisions.

This is not, according to our sources, how it happened. They say Kissinger seldom failed to give the President his personal recommendations and Nixon seldom failed to take the advice. As a former Kissinger associate put it succinctly: "Nixon agreed with Henry on the things he knew about, and he trusted Henry on the things he didn't know about."

The pattern was set early in 1969 when Nixon gave the National Security Council staff a pep talk. After a few general remarks, according to several eye witnesses, he nodded toward Kissinger. "Henry and I are going to end the war," the President said, with a sly smile. "We want you fellows to take care of the rest of the world."

Our sources say Nixon then launched into a furious and vulgar assault on the State Department. Foreign policy was going to be handled by the White House, he declared, and not by the "striped-pants faggots" at Foggy Bottom.

There was a collective gasp from the two dozen NSC staff members. President Nixon, with his penchant for saying the wrong thing at the wrong time, had forgotten that the majority of his audience had come to the White House from the Foreign Service.

Thereafter, Kissinger set up his own private State Department in the basement of the White House, where he directed every aspect of the decision-making machinery.

He presided over the National Security Council, which determined overall policy. He controlled the supersecret Committee of Forty, which plotted covert activities. He also headed the Washington Special Action Group, which assembled to manage crises.

The secret minutes show that Nixon seldom attended these crucial meetings but waited for Kissinger to fill him in. The two men conferred together frequently.

Sources who occasionally were called into their private meetings say Nixon and Kissinger apparently didn't engage in deep, intellectual discussions. They talked about world issues in terms of personalities and they were often vulgar, ripping into foreign leaders with crude, sometimes cruel, remarks.

When Kissinger traveled abroad, he kept the President informed with cryptic personal messages. Only the two of them understood some of the references.

A typical message from Kissinger in the Middle East, as recalled by a source who saw it, reported: "Met with Number One. Discussed options. He agrees in principles."

Most of Kissinger's recommendations to the President were submitted formally in secret memos, which were guarded as closely as nuclear secrets. Very few of Kissinger's associates are aware such documents exist.

We, however, have seen some of them. A typical Kissinger-to-Nixon memo would be typed on White House letterhead and stamped SECRET. Kissinger would begin with terse background information and then outline his "recommendations."

At the bottom of the page were two blank lines, the leftmost marked "Approve," and the other "Disapprove." Almost never, according to our sources, did Nixon initial the "disapprove" space.

Usually, a series of "tabs" followed on plain white paper. These took up specific issues, expressed in blunt, candid language. Each tab contained "approve" and "disapprove" lines.

The crowning touch would come when Nixon called in his Cabinet or other associates to brief them on his foreign policy decision. As he spoke to them, he invariably consulted a "talking points" paper prepared, of course, by the ubiquitous Dr. Kissinger.

Kissinger's personal memos and talking papers guided Nixon on the Vietnam war, the invasion of Cambodia, the South Vietnamese invasion of Laos, and scores of other initiatives around the world.

Our sources could recall only one major issue on which Nixon vetoed Kissinger's recommendations. That was the decision to bomb Hanoi and mine Haiphong Harbor in May 1972. In that instance, Nixon overruled all of his chief advisers, including Kissinger.

Kissinger's domination of foreign policy has continued into the Ford Administration. Indeed, President Ford had scarcely been sworn in before he assured the world that Henry Kissinger would stay on. Like Nixon before him, Ford leans heavily on Kissinger for foreign policy guidance. Our sources say, in fact, that Ford has not overruled Kissinger yet.

FOOTNOTE: Kissinger has some brilliant diplomatic achievements to his credit, including temporary peace in the Middle East, detente with the Soviet Union and rapprochement with mainland China. But there have also been a few disasters, such as the India-Pakistan war, Chile, Cyprus and the aborted "Year of Europe."

Thoughts on our schools

By DOUG KNEIBERT

I find myself thinking more about education today, not because I have a deep interest in the subject per se, but because I have an interest in where I think education is going in this country.

Which is downhill.

I may not be able to prove it, but I have a gut feeling that the average high school (or junior high, or grade school) student of say 20 or 30 years ago had a better command of what used to be called the "basics"—math, English, history, language and science—than he does today. Nationwide standardized testing tends to bear this out.

This trend is due, to my way of thinking, to two basic causes: (1) the lowering of standards; and (2) the de-emphasis of competition.

Take grades for instance. Twenty years ago, when I was in high school, the grading system went roughly like this: between 95 and 100 was an E; between 87 and 94 was an S; between 75 and 86 was an M, and the I's fell between there and 65—below which you bought the farm.

From my own kids, and after a quick check with Smith-Cotton High School, I find that everything has kind of slipped down several rungs. Now the average range for an E is more like 90 to 100, an S is 80 to 90, and so on down the line. Some teachers do grade tougher, depending on the course. But this seems to be the average.

Maybe the old system was too high; then again, maybe the present one is too low. The point is that it's easier to be a good student than it used to be.

Standards within disciplines also have taken a slide in many instances. I read the other day where a professor of English had taken the position that there is no longer such a thing as "standard" or good English. His point was the the pidgin English of the street was just as valid as that of the classroom, and that students shouldn't be penalized just because they don't know proper grammar, usage, or how to spell. This kind of academic malarky is by no means unusual today.

Another straw blowing in the wind came to my attention the other day. A standard diagnostic reading test was recently administered to some elementary pupils in the Sedalia system, in which they did markedly better than they had on another test administered only six months earlier. The explanation was furnished by the test salesman, who said the exam had been simplified in response to pressures from school administrators wanting to be able to show "positive" results—in other words, "improvement"—in pupils' scores.

This kind of thinking contains the seeds of educational hari-kari for the nation.

Competition is also a dirty word today in our schools today. Since we are all supposed to be endowed the same in the best traditions of a democratic society, it is considered in poor taste for some students to do better than others. This gave us the "ungraded" system a few years back and other gimmicks designed to downplay grade competition and other such subversive notions.

I was talking to a woman some months ago who was preparing to move with her family to Australia. She was concerned about one problem: American youths enrolling in the no-nonsense, tough Australian schools were, as a matter of course, put back one year.

This should be telling us something.

Dodgers bring out best in A's

Oakland A's power to 3rd world title

OAKLAND (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers brought out the best in the Oakland A's. As it turned out, the best was good enough to win the 1974 World Series.

"They needed a little humility," said Sal Bando, and the A's gave it to them by whipping the Dodgers 3-2 Thursday night to win their third straight world title, this one in five uneasy games.

The season ended officially when Oakland relief star Rollie Fingers collared pinch-hitter Von Joshua's bleeding grounder and hopped in joy as he threw out the runner.

Actually, the Dodgers were dead but didn't know it when they popped off against the A's before this bizarre Series started.

They called the A's doubtful champions, even though they had won two straight baseball titles.

"After they beat Pittsburgh in the (National League) playoffs, the Dodgers said they weren't impressed by us," said Joe Rudi, who hit the winning home run Thursday night. "Well, they have all winter to think about it."

Reggie Jackson, the most emotional of all the dynamic A's, wouldn't gloat over the obviously sweet victory. But you got some idea how he felt when he announced: "We're the champs ... I don't have to say anything more."

What the Dodgers learned from the 1974 World Series is that you don't give the A's a break and expect to get away with it.

In the first game at Los Angeles, the Dodgers outthit the A's 11-6, but the A's outscored the Dodgers 3-2. Jackson homered for the A's, and they got their winning runs on a squeeze bunt by Bert Campaneris and an error by Dodger third baseman Ron Cey. Fingers throttled the Dodgers with some great relief pitching before 25-game winner Jim "Catfish" Hunter came in to get the last out.

Another 3-2 score resulted in the second game at Los Angeles, but this time the Dodgers were the winners. Joe Ferguson hit a two-run homer for the National League champions and strongman Mike Marshall snuffed out a ninth-inning Oakland rally.

After the A's scored two runs on Joe Rudi's base hit in the ninth inning, sprinter Herb Washington ran for Rudi but was picked off first base by Marshall in the most embarrassing play of the Series for Oakland.

It was a big mistake, Washington admitted, but the last one for the world champions.

Back in the comfort of their own ballpark, the A's took a typical 3-2 decision in game No. 3. The A's scored two unearned runs after Ferguson, moved from right field to catcher, fumbled Jackson's 15-foot bouncer in front of the plate. Bill Buckner and Willie Crawford hit home runs for the Dodgers, but they came too late.

The omnipresent Fingers saved the victory for Hunter. As you might expect, the A's were outthit by the Dodgers 7-5 but Oakland still found a way to win.

Pitcher Ken Holtzman, who hits as well as he pitches in World Series play, unloaded a home run in Oakland's 5-2 victory in game No. 4.

Jim Holt, hitless in 25 -inch-hitting appearances during the regular season, delivered a two-run single to key a four-run sixth inning that broke the game open. The tireless Fingers bailed out an Oakland starter once more.

That set the stage for Thursday night. Movie star Rock Hudson threw out the first ball — and the A's picked up the same, tired script.

"We never win them easily," said Oakland second baseman Dick Green, the defensive star of the Series.

Vida Blue, still looking for his first World Series victory, was given an early lead but couldn't hold it. A Dodger error set up Sal Bando's sacrifice fly in the first inning, then Ray Fosse hit a mistake pitch from Dodger ace Don Sutton into the left field seats for a 2-0 Oakland lead.

It stayed that way until the sixth, when the Dodgers tied the game with the help of their two best run-producers of 1974. Jimmy Wynn hit a sacrifice fly and Steve Garvey singled in the second run and the Dodgers pulled even with the A's at 2-2.

This quieted the capacity crowd of 49,347 fans at the Oakland Coliseum for a while — but they didn't stay that way for very long.

In the next inning, Rudi parked an inside fastball from Marshall into the left field seats. The massive electronic sign in left field lit up "JOE" in 90-foot letters, green and gold A's pennants sprouted from the concrete stands and, as the crowd noise peaked, fireworks went off.

Smith-Cotton harriers in district competition

(Democrat-Capital Service)

MARSHALL — Sedalia Smith-Cotton is among the 17-team field entered here Saturday in the district cross country meet, sanctioned by the Missouri State High School Activities Association.

The meet is a qualifying event for next week's regional finals at Elm Hills Golf Course, Sedalia.

The top three teams, as well as individuals finishing 10th or higher will qualify for the regional trials. Saturday's district meet is the first step toward the state finals, set for Nov. 2 in Columbia.

One of the favorites to capture the district crown here is Jefferson City, which finished third in last year's state meet.

Other teams entered in Saturday's meet include Boonville, Bosworth, Brookfield, Columbia Hickman, Columbia Rock Bridge, Fulton, Glasgow, Jefferson City Helias, Knob Noster, Moberly, New Bloomfield, Russellville, Slater, Warrensburg and host Marshall.

At the regional meet next week, the top three teams, as well as persons finishing first through 10th at the Neosho, Rolla and Marshall districts will make up the field at Elm Hills.

Three MIAA front-runners all see loop action on road

By The Associated Press

There's a three-way tie for first place in the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association football race, and it can remain that way Saturday if all of the leaders come through.

Deadlocked for the top spot are Northwest Missouri, Southwest Missouri and Missouri Rolla. All three clubs, with 1-0 league records, may find the going rough, however, since they play on the road.

Northwest goes to Central Missouri, 0-1, where it will be homecoming; Southwest moves into Southeast Missouri, 0-1, and Rolla invades Northeast Missouri, also for homecoming. Northeast will be making its first conference appearance of the campaign.

Lincoln, 2-3 over-all, the other MIAA member, tackles a non-conference foe, independent Missouri Southern, at Joplin. Missouri Southern is 2-2.

Central Methodist, with a 2-0 record, has zoomed out front in the Heart of America Conference title drive and will visit unbeaten but once-tied Missouri Valley Saturday night.

Four other Heart of America teams also will be busy trying to gain ground on the leader. William Jewell, 1-0 and impressive in its 37-6 victory over Tarkio last week, goes to Ottawa, 0-2, and Tarkio, 0-1-1, travels to Graceland in Iowa, 1-0. Both games are at night. Baker, 0-2, is idle.

Washington University of St. Louis and Culver-Stockton, the two top teams among Missouri independent colleges, will put their 4-1 marks on the line.

Washington, beaten 20-7 last week by Wabash of Indiana, has an afternoon game in St. Louis against Ohio Wesleyan, and Culver-Stockton is at Benedictine in Illinois.

Missouri Western, 1-5, will oppose Benedictine of Kansas at Atchison. The Atchison team, 0-5, will be observing its homecoming.

Reliever Rollie Fingers earns car, MVP honor

OAKLAND (AP) — If you were casting a 1930s movie serial, Rollie Fingers and his carefully cultivated handlebar moustache would be perfect for the villain.

And if you were casting a World Series for the Oakland A's, the man you would want warming up in the bullpen is Fingers, who has a way of showing up on the mound when the A's are about to win World championships.

The sinister looking right-hander earned an automobile as Most Valuable Player in the World Series, winning one game, saving two others, and appearing in all four Oakland victories over Los Angeles. It is no coincidence that the only game Fingers didn't pitch in was the one the Dodgers won.

The world championship was the third straight for the A's. They won in seven games in 1972, seven in 1973 and five in 1974. That's 19 baseball games. In 16 of them, Fingers has come out of the bullpen.

There is just so much rubber in any pitcher's arm and Fingers admitted that the constant work was beginning to take its toll as he worked against the Dodgers in the final two innings of Thursday night's championship-clinching game.

"I was getting tired," he said. "The back of my arm hurt so I couldn't get a breaking ball over. I only could get my fast ball over."

In the eighth inning, Fingers tried a breaking ball on Dodgers' slugger Joe Ferguson, who sent the ball soaring towards the left field seats — but well foul. "He hit the pitch nine million miles," said

Fingers. "I threw it away after that."

Before the game, A's pitching coach Wes Stock sidled up to Fingers and asked how his arm felt after two straight days of work. "I told him I had a few innings in it," said the reliever.

That was all Stock and Manager Alvin Dark needed to hear. With the score tied at 2-2 and the game moving into the late innings, Stock told Fingers to get ready. "He told me that I'd be pitching if we scored one run," said Fingers.

Sure enough, the A's got that run on a first-pitch homer by Joe Rudi against Dodgers' bullpen ace Mike Marshall in the bottom of the seventh. That was the signal for Fingers to start warming up.

After Ferguson's foul drive in the eighth, Fingers sailed into the ninth, needing only three more outs to nail down the World championship. He got them in a hurry.

Polly's pointers

Rubbed smudge won't go away

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with men's work boots that have only a thin piece of material covering the steel in the toes. When that cloth wears away socks rub the steel and continually make holes which mean constant darning. — PAT.

DEAR POLLY — Like Mrs. C.B.S. I was once an unimportant cash customer in stores where I shopped all the time. I had to establish credit EVERY time I made a big purchase that I planned to pay for in 60 or 90 days. I finally got smart and established charge accounts at the big stores that offer them. Now I buy what I need and charge it. When the bill comes I pay in full (to avoid charges) so I am still a cash customer in my own mind plus a valued charge customer and my credit rating is excellent. Of course, this can only work if you keep in mind that you are going to pay in full when the bill comes and are careful not to over-spend just because you have a charge card. It also keeps all but pin money in a checking account and one writes as few checks as possible. — MRS. F.A.L.

DEAR POLLY — Our children put their stereo equipment in an area in the recreation room that the former owners had used as a closet and they wanted a bead curtain to cover the opening. After pricing beads they found their budgets could not stand the cost so they collected small medicine vials from everyone they knew and drilled a hole in the bottom of each one. The plastic vials were then painted, left clear or had designs put on them. Salvaged yarn was then strung through each vial and knots made along the length to hold them in place. These turned out to be very charming "bead" curtains as the vials were carefully alternated according to sizes and lengths and staggered on the various lengths of yarn. — MARY ANN.

DEAR POLLY — I have diabetes. Before seasoning fresh vegetables for the rest of the family I remove my serving and put in a three-cup egg poacher to keep my vegetable warm until we are ready to eat.

I like to use all new potatoes even the very small ones and have discovered a vegetable brush is great for getting the thin skin off these small newly-dug potatoes. I used to dread preparing them when I scraped with a knife. — EMMA.

DEAR POLLY — My Pointer is for mothers who are planning a birthday party for a child and feel, as I do, that 10 cards for 69 cents is just too much for invitations when one adds 10 cents for mailing. I was about ready to buy these at the dime store when I suddenly spied post cards at 25 for 25 cents. They were colorful and attractive with appropriate juvenile pictures. I bought 50 for 50 cents and saved not only on the cards but could use eight cent stamps. On the blank side I typed a verse I made up which included the name of the birthday child, the date, time and address. I have had several compliments from mothers of kids I invited to the party. — LINDA.

Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — Thank you so much for the help you give us with our problems. Now I would appreciate knowing how to remove a smudge from my lovely drum top table. I spilled nail polish on its highly polished and waxed surface immediately wiped it off with tissue and sponged it with cold water but was left with a smudge. How can I remove it and restore the original luster to the table top? — MRS. L.K.

In Nixon pardon

Ford: no deals made

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford, in an unprecedented personal appearance before a congressional panel, said Thursday "there was no deal, period, under no circumstances," in his pardon of former President Richard M. Nixon.

Ford said that he granted the pardon for the benefit of the nation, not Nixon, and he is convinced he did the right thing at the right time.

"I wanted to do all I could to shift our attentions from the pursuit of a fallen president to the pursuit of the urgent needs of a rising nation," he said.

Ford said he hoped by coming before the House judiciary subcommittee and giving his account of the pardon personally he had "at least cleared the air" of the rumors and suspicions that have circulated about the pardon since he announced it Sept. 8.

But most subcommittee members said they still regarded many questions as unanswered, and Chairman William Hungate, D-Mo., said further hearings, with other witnesses, might be held after the November elections.

"I'm confident all the facts are not out," said Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., author of one of the two resolutions of inquiry that led to Ford's appearance.

Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., author of the other one, said more witnesses had to be called, particularly former White House chief of staff Alexander M. Haig, before Congress and the nation could be certain there was no deal involved in the pardon.

"This is only the beginning," she said. Before submitting to brief questioning by the subcommittee members, Ford read for 45 minutes from a prepared statement in which he recounted to a nationwide radio-TV audience the steps leading up to the pardon.

He said a pardon was first mentioned to him by Haig at a meeting Aug. 1, a week before Nixon resigned, as one of six courses of action being considered in the White House. The meeting was prompted by the discovery that a tape Nixon had been withholding from the courts contained damaging evidence of his knowledge of the Watergate cover-up, Ford said.

"The substance of his (Haig's) conversation was that the new disclosure would be devastating, even catastrophic, insofar as President Nixon was concerned," Ford said. The tape was made public Aug. 5, producing overwhelming sentiment in Congress for Nixon's impeachment.

Ford said other steps being considered on Aug. 1 were fighting impeachment to the end, resignation at once, resignation at a later date, a temporary stepdown by Nixon, trying to get a censure vote as an alternative to impeachment, and a Nixon pardon of himself.

Ford said Haig did not advocate any of the options and that he withheld any recommendation of his own until he had time for further thought.

Ford said the subject of a pardon for Nixon was not brought up again until his first news conference as president on Aug. 28, when he was advised to prepare for questions about it. The questions came and Ford said he would not make any decision until he saw what the special prosecutor and the courts would do.

"Shortly afterwards," Ford told congressmen, "I became greatly concerned that if Mr. Nixon's prosecution and trial were prolonged, the passions generated over a long period of time would seriously disrupt the healing of our country from the wounds of the past."

Ford said he sought legal advice from White House counsel Philip Buchen and other lawyers on his staff about the pardon powers of a president, but otherwise consulted no one about it. He also said no one recommended he grant the pardon.

Other than seeking assurances that Nixon would accept a pardon, he set no conditions on it, he said, specifically not requesting a confession. In answer to a question later, he said he felt the acceptance of the pardon was an admission of guilt by Nixon.

Ford said there was no connection between the pardon and the arrange-

Vice president-designate Nelson Rockefeller greets wellwishers Thursday as he leaves a New York hospital where his wife, Happy, had undergone surgery for breast

Areas okayed for flood insurance

Three areas in the city have been designated eligible for federal flood insurance effective Friday, City Engineer Robert Cunningham announced Thursday.

The City Council in June voted to apply for the program, which was implemented in 1973 as the Flood Disaster Protection Act.

One of the locations in the city is a one-half mile long, 200-foot wide valley adjacent to a tributary of the Breakfast Branch of Flat Creek. It is situated in the southeast area of town from 20th Street to 150 feet south of 28th Street in an area encompassing Centennial Park. There is one house located in the area, Cunningham said.

A second designated area is another half-mile long and 200-foot wide area, located north of Henry Street and west of Missouri along a tributary of Muddy Creek. The area extends across Grand and crosses the north city limits at Highway 65. Between five and six houses are located in this area, Cunningham indicated.

The third area is a one-mile, 200-foot wide area along Brushy Creek also in the northwest section of town. It begins approximately 400 feet north of Broadway and approximately 230 feet west of State Fair Boulevard and meanders in a northwesterly direction past Main Street. A portion of the land borders Broadway. In addition to containing homes, this area also includes several industrial buildings including structures owned by Parkhurst Manufacturing Co. and the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co.

Cunningham said maps of the areas, outlining the specific boundaries, are available for viewing in his office.

Prior to passage of the act, Cunningham explained, persons living in or owning buildings and houses in flood-prone areas could not purchase flood insurance. Under the terms of the bill, the insurance limit is set at $35,000 for single-family homes and $100,000 for other residential and non-residential buildings. The subsidized rate for all residential buildings is 25 cents per $100 worth of coverage, with the rate increased to 40 cents per $100 worth of coverage for nonresidential structures.

The contents of all residential buildings can be insured up to $10,000 per unit at 35 cents per $100 of coverage, with the coverage limit for non-residential structures being $100,000 per unit, at a fee of 75 cents per $100 coverage.

The insurance coverage, it was explained, can be purchased from any licensed insurance agent or broker. The

Army opens Truman Dam highway bids

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Army's district engineer has opened bids on almost $7.2 million worth of highway work to make way for the waters to be backed up when the Truman Dam is completed late in the 1970s at Warsaw.

Massman Construction Co. of Kansas City submitted the apparent low bid of $2,075,000 for slope protection work along 2.6 miles of Highway 13 between Clinton and Deepwater.

The highway already has been relocated on a high fill. The new project will mend some erosion damage and line the embankment with more than 300,000 tons of rock.

The second lowest bid was $2,585,000 and the highest of five others was $4,696,000.

The other project involves the relocation of two farm-to-market roads in St. Clair County near Osceola and Roscoe. The 2.2 miles of work on Route E near Roscoe and 1.8 miles on Route B west of Osceola include three steel bridges and a concrete bridge.

Arrowhead Design and Construction Co. of Deepwater was the apparent low bidder on this phase at $5,090,000. The next lowest of the five bids was $5,185,000 and the highest $6,022,000.

Predicts low beef prices

KANSAS CITY (AP) — An economist for the U. S. Department of Agriculture said Thursday there is little chance that the low price-high cost squeeze on the cattle industry can be turned around until sometime in 1976.

In the meantime, said George Hoffman, the housewife will reap the benefit of comparatively low beef prices at the supermarket for at least another year. There is one exception.

The supply of prime and choice cuts, marbled with fat and tender enough to cut with a fork, will diminish and as the result they will remain comparatively expensive.

Hoffman spoke at the initial meeting of a cattle industry advisory committee set up by the Department of Agriculture.

It is made up of cattle breeders, cattle feeders and meat wholesalers from all over the country, plus a couple of livestock research specialists, a banker and a representative of the Consumers Union.

Hoffman is with the economic research service of the Department of Agriculture, and he told the committee that the cattle industry built up such a head of steam in recent years of herd expansion that it cannot now quickly turn off a production line which is flooding the market with animals.

"The essential problem for the industry is now the cost of production," Hoffman said.

This is the reason there will be fewer choice steaks and less prime rib but plenty of stew meat, hamburger and processed beef.

It takes intensive feeding of grains to produce the choice and prime cuts, and grains are expensive.

Feeders can't afford them, so cattle are going to market without the finish which has become so prized on the dinner table.

Although many cattlemen are selling many of their poorest cows and a lot of their calves so they won't have to feed them through the winter, Hoffman said there still will be 134 million head of cattle on U. S. farms at the start of 1975.

About 7 million cows will be slaughtered this year, up 700,000 from last year.

Round and round they go

As Sedalia is experiencing its own version of Indian summer, everyone is making an effort to enjoy the last bit of nice weather before winter sets in. These kindergarten children at Jefferson School, 305 East

Chestnut, took their recess break Thursday morning to take a spin on the merry-go-round on the school playground.

Action must be taken to fill economic void

Stating that "even a delay of days is harmful to our cause," Sedalia Chamber of Commerce executive manager Larry Melton Thursday called for steps to be taken immediately to fill the void created by the decision of Dana Rotegard, Minneapolis, not to accept the city economic development director's position offered him.

"We need to take action at once," Melton said. "I've been on the job for just a month and I've received inquiries from industrial prospects nearly every day... it's really been a salesman's dream because the potential customers are just walking into your office or calling you on the phone for business."

City Counselor Robert Fritz' ruling that a deadlocked council vote on hiring an developer cannot be broken by the Mayor should be legally tested, Melton recommended.

"If it is not upheld, then we go right ahead and secure another person," he said. If Fritz's decision is upheld, Melton suggested, the city should establish and fund a temporary economic development office.

While not offering specifics regarding his temporary office proposal, Melton said "the council should authorize something of this nature and give them the money to operate with. I think the council should be disposed to do at least this much to help the economic situation of this city."

Despite the uncertainty of the present situation, Melton said he favored "going right ahead and interviewing other applicants. I think we should go ahead and attempt to secure another person. There just isn't time left to waste."

The Economic Development Board also confronted the situation at a special meeting Thursday afternoon. First Ward Councilman Don Broadus said he would discuss the problem with the City Council during its pre-council session Monday night.

Broadus told the board he has received a resume from another applicant for the position of economic development director. However, he said, "Unless some of the Democrats who are opposed to this would change their minds, I can't see any point in asking any more people to come here for an interview."

The council currently is deadlocked on the issue, with four Democrats opposing and four Republicans in favor of a fulltime director. Five votes are needed for passage.

Rotegard was hired Oct. 7 by the council on a 4-3 vote. The hiring would not have been approved if Third Ward Councilman Carl Franklin, a Democrat, had attended the meeting. He was out of town that night.

"It's almost an emergency that we do something, whether it's subsidizing the chamber or using individual efforts, we have to do something to get somebody in

Councilman takes exception to story

Councilman Carl Franklin took exception Wednesday to a news report and editorial in The Democrat-Capitol stating that some Democrats on the City Council were seeking closed hearings on the charges lodged against Police Chief William Miller.

Franklin said he had always favored public hearings and would continue to do so. He said no other Democrats on the council had indicated a desire to hold the hearing in secret.

The initial report that some Democrats had sought a closed session with Miller was included in a story on Monday night's special City Council meeting. The press was barred from the meeting.

Franklin, Third Ward Democrat, also denied that Democrats were playing "politics" on the hearing, as charged by First Ward Republican Allen Hawkins.

"Bob Wells (Third Ward Democrat) and I have worked very closely with Mr. Dugan to keep politics out of it," said Franklin. Dugan is a Republican representing the Fourth Ward.

The City Council is expected to make a definite decision at its meeting Monday night on whether to schedule a public hearing for Miller. A tentative date of Oct. 29 was set Monday, but some councilmen expressed the desire to await the outcome of a Police Personnel Board hearing for Miller.

Special counsel William F. Brown advised the council that it could go ahead with its hearing independent of the Police Personnel Board's actions.

Fourth Ward Republican George Dugan Jr., said Wednesday he would introduce a motion at Monday's council meeting to make the Oct. 29 date firm. He said the motion would not be related to any action the Police Personnel Board might take.

Richard Lambden, chairman of the Police Personnel Board, said Thursday he had received Miller's request for a hearing, but that "a hearing has not been scheduled." He declined further comment.

Move on Rocky

Two months after his nomination as vice president by President Gerald Ford, Nelson Rockefeller is still languishing in limbo.

Only the Senate Rules Committee has held any hearings at all on Rockefeller's nomination, and those were in September. The House committee has not even set a date.

In the meantime, Rockefeller has become the target of Washington's selective leak machine. Charges involve alleged improprieties surrounding financial contributions Rockefeller made to various political figures, a 1970 debunking biography of Arthur Goldberg, and suggestions that Laurance Rockefeller benefited financially from a contribution to Richard Nixon's re-election campaign.

The proper forum to investigate all of these is public hearings by the House and Senate.

It is widely believed that the Democratic-controlled Congress is purposely sitting on the Rockefeller nomination to deny the Republican Party the benefit of Rocky's formidable campaigning skills this fall.

Whatever the reason for the inaction, it is time to get back to work. The nation needs a vice president.

Talking a good war

It is said that Winston Churchill mobilized the English language and sent it off to battle in World War II. In contrast, President Ford's war on inflation seems to be floundering in a sea of maladroit metaphors.

Tuesday night in Kansas City, the President spoke of biting bullets, marshmallows and dishing up some "tough turkey" for Congress in the way of stronger anti-inflation proposals. So far, we must reluctantly admit, Ford has talked a much better inflation war than he has fought.

The American people don't care if its bullets, marshmallows or turkey, just as long as the nation gets its teeth into something. What we don't need is baloney.

A conservative view

Heading off that GOP debacle

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — This is the bullet-biting season, as President Ford keeps reminding us, and his own Republican Party may have to bite a whole boxful of bullets this month. As many as 40 seats in the House and five in the Senate could be amputated by the Democrats unless —

Kilpatrick

A headline in last Sunday's Star-News put the prospect succinctly: "GOP Debacle Is Emerging." The newspaper's top political writer, Jack W. Germond, found a nationwide pattern — so far as Republican fortunes are concerned — of "unrelieved misery." My own sources glumly confirm that appraisal.

Unless what? Unless normally conservative Republicans and independents come swiftly to their senses. Most of the imperiled seats won't be won by Democratic energy; they will be lost by Republican apathy.

It seems incredible that Peter Dominick could be in serious trouble in Colorado. In times past, he has been one of the most popular political figures in the state. Highly respected in the Senate, where he has served for the past 12 years, Dominick is fully qualified for re-election. Yet he seems to be trailing badly behind young Gary Hart, a McGovernite liberal with no track record at all.

It is equally dismaying to talk with experienced observers in Iowa, Kentucky, and even in Oregon, where Robert Packwood had been regarded as a certain winner. The news from Kansas, Oklahoma and North Dakota offers little encouragement. The major gubernatorial contests, in California and New York, find Democrats far ahead.

The underlying reasons are plain: inflation, Watergate, and pardon. To the extent that blame for the current recession can be politically fixed, the Democrats are far more responsible than the Republicans. The Democrats, after all, have controlled Congress for the past 20 years. Republican candidates for House and Senate had nothing whatever to do with Watergate. And to cast a vote against Peter Dominick because Gerald Ford pardoned Richard Nixon is to substitute lunacy for reason.

But if the debacle occurs, apathy will count for more than any other cause. Some 145 million Americans will be eligible to vote on Nov. 5. Fewer than half of them will take the time and trouble to go to the polls. In the off-year elections of 1966, according to the Census Bureau, 44.5 per cent of the eligibles voted. The percentage dropped to 43.8 in 1970. Last Sunday's Gallup Poll found political interest at a record low.

Just two years ago, 47 million voters provided an impressive statement of political choice. They voted generally against what George McGovern stood for, and generally in favor of what Richard Nixon stood for. This army of putatively conservative voters won the most convincing political victory of this century. Where have all the soldiers gone? Are they sulking like Achilles in his tent?

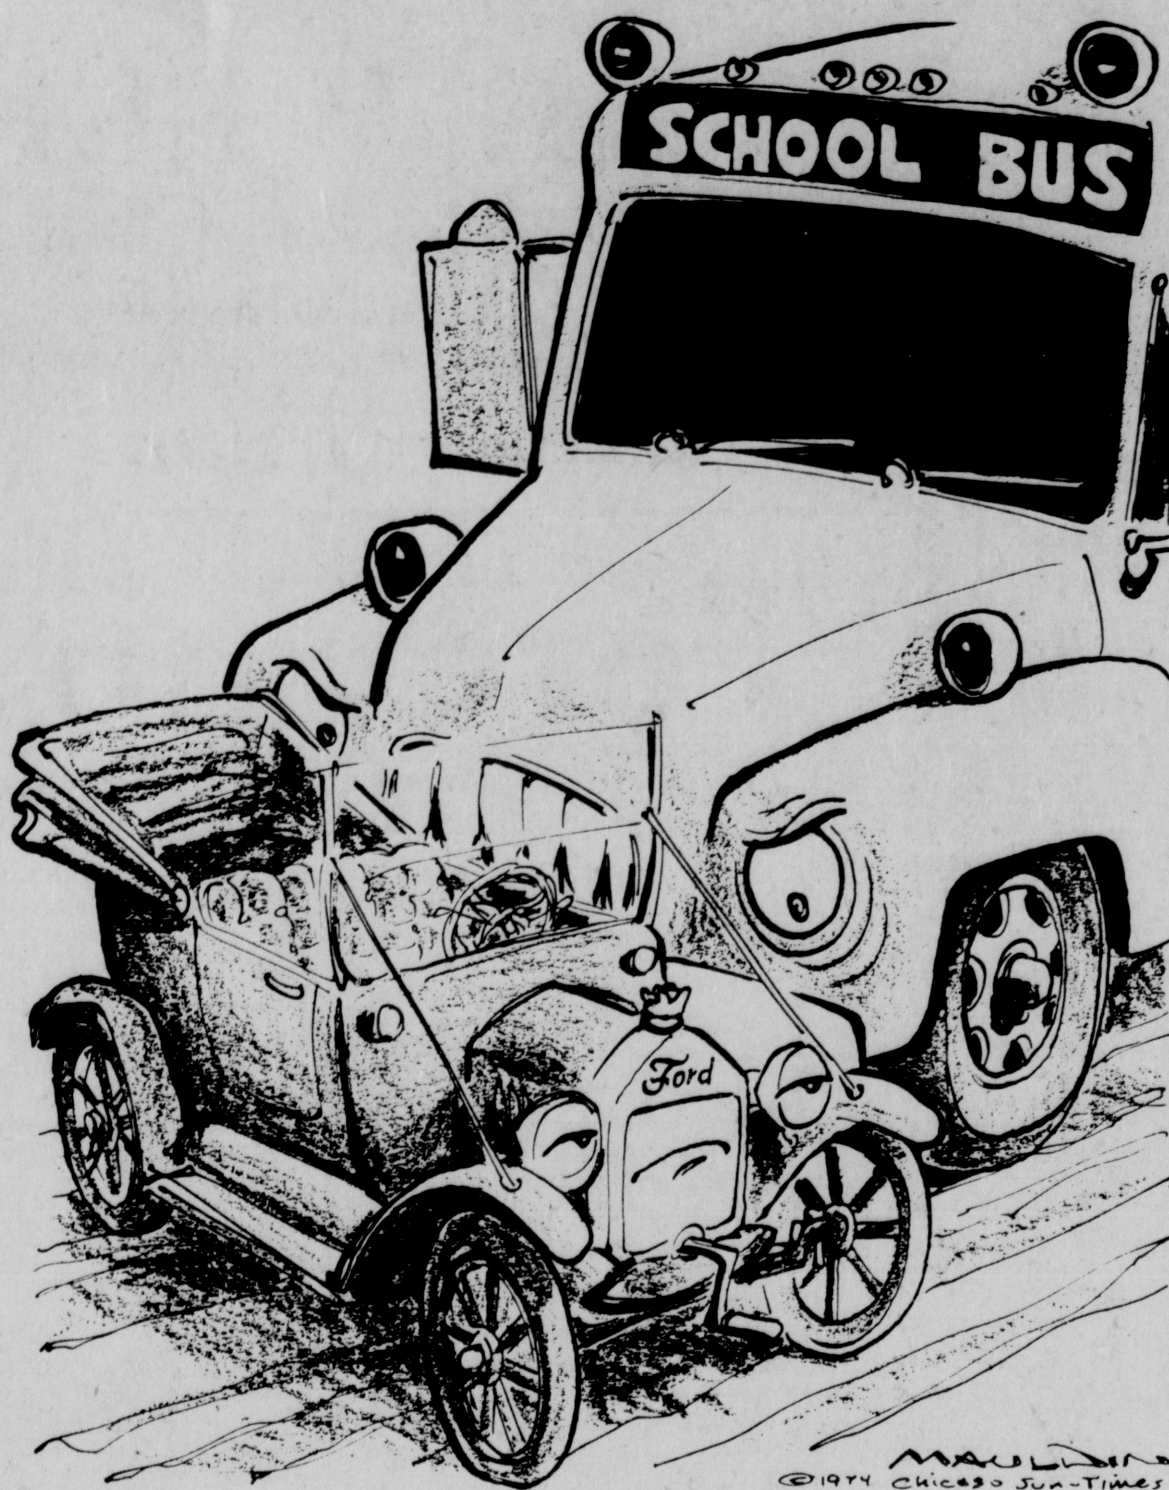

The debacle doesn't have to occur. If the Coloradoans who gave Nixon 63 per cent of their vote in 1972 will look to the future, instead of to the past, Dominick could yet be saved. The four House seats lost to Democrats in by-elections of the past year can be reclaimed in November. All that is required is that normally conservative voters act normally.

What will happen if conservatives stay home? What can be expected of a House and Senate overwhelmingly dominated by the Democratic Party? The consequences will bring the triumph of Big Labor and Big Liberalism — the ascension of the very programs, ideas and attitudes rejected two years ago.

Nothing in the public opinion polls would indicate that this is what the people want. On the contrary, the Gallup Poll finds strong conservative leanings across the nation. Such leanings alone will get Republicans nowhere. Republicans need votes. The votes can yet be marshalled if disgruntled conservatives will only reflect upon the folly of the fellow who cut off his nose to spite his face.

"IT'S TRUE.... YOU ARE DEFINITELY NO LINCOLN."

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — New secret documents tell of 18 busy world airports which are open to Arab terrorist attack because of lax security or their location in guerrilla-infested areas.

The new survey by the Federal Aviation Administration supercedes one this summer turned up by Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., a House air safety expert. When we printed the names of the eight "most vulnerable" airports then, we were criticized for breaking the seal of secrecy on classified FAA documents.

But we reasoned that travelers had a right to that information, and now the new survey seems to bear us out. The current FAA study shows that London, which we listed as a security horror story, is now much improved. New Delhi and Bangkok have been dropped from the earlier list.

In any case, according to U. S. intelligence reports, the Fedayeen already know which airports are easy marks.

The new study, classified "For Official Use Only," names the 18 "High Risk Foreign Airports" as Rome, Frankfurt, Amsterdam, Geneva, Zurich, Madrid, Beirut, Athens, Tel Aviv, Paris, Munich, London, Istanbul, Vienna, Brussels, Barcelona, Copenhagen and Lisbon.

Terrorists have struck most frequently, the documents say, at Munich where 11 incidents have occurred. The FAA probes cite West Germany's "close Israeli ties" as one reason for the attacks. Second, with five episodes, is Rome. Athens and Beirut have had four each and Frankfurt and Amsterdam have had three.

Beirut and Tel Aviv are praised by the FAA for doing their best, but they are classified "High Risk" because of their location in the volatile Middle East. London has improved mightily, but is still listed because of the large number of flights, particularly departures bound for

Merry-go-round

Airports of world still security lax

the United States.

Zurich and Geneva are branded as risks for an intriguing reason. Arab terrorists, according to the FAA's intelligence, are angry over Switzerland's willingness to allow a Geneva peace conference on the Middle East.

"Attacks at this time would be aimed at disrupting peace conference and as punishment of Swiss for allowing the conference," the FAA study says.

FOOTNOTE: Murphy pushed through a law permitting an embargo on flights between the United States and countries with risk-prone airports. In private correspondence Murphy has been urging the Department of Transportation to begin enforcing the law.

BIRCH BARK: President Ford warmly embraced C. R. Lewis, a prominent John Birch Society member, when he came to Washington recently.

Lewis is running for the Senate in Alaska on the Republican ticket, so Ford posed with Lewis for the traditional hand-shaking scene for campaign use. The President even threw in an extra picture of them strolling together and a "Dear C. R." letter telling Lewis: "I am looking forward to working with you in the Senate."

The John Birch Society showed its appreciation later by ripping Ford apart in its "The Review of the News," which featured a full-page ad for Lewis' contracting firm.

"One cannot escape the feeling," declared the Birch publication, "that Gerald Ford is under a discipline and serving a radical cause."

"When the script calls for declaring that American youth should prepare to emulate the example of young slaves in the concentration camp that is Red China, Gerald Ford follows the script."

In sum, said the article, the President is a "hustler for Chairman Mao."

FOOTNOTE: The White House declined comment on the endorsement of the John Birch candidate. But at the GOP campaign committee, a spokesman told us the candidate's philosophy weighs far less than "whether he can win."

WATCH ON WASTE: The Air Force shipped 350 personnel officers across the nation to San Antonio for a conference on management efficiency. The object was to save money for the taxpayers. Sources familiar with such conferences suggest, on the contrary, that it cost the payers more than will be saved.

Just the per diem bills turned in by the 350 conferees added up to $52,000. An Air Force spokesman told us: "There is no way to figure travel costs."

WASHINGTON WHIRL: In a stern memo to his staff, Interior Secretary Rogers Morton told them their junketing has reached "unreasonable proportions" and must be cut back. Morton's own recent junkets include trips to Maine, the Gulf Coast, Mississippi and Alabama. A White House aide, who defied the demands of the Watergate crew, is returning to government as the Interior Department's communications chief. He is Bill Rhatigan, who single-handedly stopped the Nixon campaign from politicizing the White House anti-drug program. We reported recently that Army recruiters had been signing up misfits and even criminals in their eagerness to reach recruiting goals. Army Secretary Howard Callaway has now written us pledging: "We are making a sincere attempt to eliminate all irregularities from Army recruiting. I hope the unfortunate practices used in the past by a few Army recruiters will not detract from the overall outstanding success of our recruiting efforts." The Marine Corps recruiting slogan, "The Marines Are Looking for a Few Good Men," has irritated a lot of women. A group calling themselves the Federally Employed Women has accused the leathernecks of discriminating against women in their recruitment program.

Conjoined twins are referred to as "Siamese" twins. The name was derived from conjoined twins Chang and Eng Bunker who were born in Siam (now Thailand) in 1811. The World Almanac notes. In 1843, the Bunker twins married two sisters, Sarah and Adelaide Yates. Chang and Eng fathered 10 and 12 children respectively. The brothers died within three hours of each other in 1874.

On using Rocky's millions

WASHINGTON — The two major political problems in this country this week are that Nelson Rockefeller seems to have too much money and Richard Nixon doesn't seem to have enough.

Buchwald

Last Friday the headlines said Rocky was throwing around money like a drunken congressman, while the Justice Department had made deal to defend Richard Nixon's Watergate civil suits at no cost to him.

This angered many people in the country, including Selwyn Mims who called in a rage. "Why should I as a taxpayer have to foot Nixon's legal fees?"

"Because," I said, "that's the way they do it over at Justice. They feel they owe Nixon something."

"Why doesn't Rocky give him the money?" Mims wanted to know.

"Why should Rockefeller give him any money?" I asked.

"Because if Nixon hadn't resigned, Rockefeller wouldn't be the vice-presidential candidate now."

"That's true, but Rockefeller can't just give money to EVERYBODY. After all, there's even a limit to his fortune," I said.

"How do you know that?"

He had me there. "I'm just guessing there's a limit. There is, isn't there?"

"Why are you asking me?" Selwyn wanted to know. "Anyway I think we should make Rocky promise to take care of Nixon for the rest of his life."

"That's not cheap," I warned Selwyn. "Nixon likes a lot of perks, such as servants, chauffeurs, secretaries, ghostwriters, not to mention a press secretary and a large office staff."

"Rocky can handle it," Selwyn assured me. "At least, he can afford it more than we can."

"But," I said, "there could be a conflict of interest. Suppose Nixon ran for public office again? If he had accepted a gift of money he'd be under obligation to Rockefeller."

"If you read Rockefeller's statements he has never given anybody money except as a gesture of appreciation and friendship. Not once has he taken advantage of the gifts."

"You know that," I said, "and I know that. But does Nixon know it? I think you have a good idea, but it won't fly. We, the public, should give Nixon anything he asks for and not leave it up to the Rockefeller's of this world."

"While I'm the first to agree that this country should economize, I don't believe it should be at the expense of an ex-President who was forced to resign because he was up to his ears in the obstruction of justice for which he has been given a full and unqualified pardon."

"Well it was just an idea," Selwyn said. "You don't have to get sore at me."

"I'm sorry. I lost my cool," I said. "But you have to admit, we've reached a sorry point in this country when we question a man who gives one or two million dollars away to people he has a deep affection for."

"I wasn't questioning that," Mims protested. "All I was suggesting was a way to take care of Nixon's legal and household bills without sticking the taxpayer. Gerry Ford did ask us to think of ways of saving money."

"He also said it was time we forgave Rockefeller," I said, "because he's suffered enough."

"Deleted, deleted, deleted," swore South, "expletive, expletive! I squeeze them and finally fall for a second-class swindle."

Seven notrump was a mighty good contract. If hearts broke better than 5-1 South would have had 13 top tricks. As it was he worked out a perfect three-suit squeeze.

He won the spade lead with his king; played two rounds of hearts; stopped to regroup when West showed out and after considerable slow play came down to a three-card ending. He held a heart, a club and a high diamond, which he lead. West sitting in front of dummy had to discard down to a high spade and one club whereupon the eight of spades was thrown from dummy to leave the king and jack of clubs.

East, sitting in back of dummy, had to hold a high heart and hence had to unguard his queen of clubs.

Unfortunately for poor South, West had discarded the four of spades on the second heart; played the 10 of spades when the suit was next led; discarded the jack of spades and hung on to the nine.

South knew that one of East's last two cards was a heart. He finally decided that the other one was the nine of spades so South took the club finesse and went down two tricks.

that job — even if it's a part-time position" Third Ward Democrat Bob Wells, a board member, said he is opposed to hiring an economic development director. "In the reports I've seen... I can't see that much of an accomplishment for the money spent in the past. I think in the last few years we've wasted a lot of money in this department."

The board decided that a list of possibilities in handling the situation should be presented to the council Monday.

The possibilities included a change in the vote of one or more of the Democrats opposing a fulltime director; hiring a part-time person to fill the vacancy; subsidizing the Chamber of Commerce to allow Melton to take on additional responsibilities of soliciting industry for Sedalia; offering Mayor Jerry Jones a part-time position as director; stopping all efforts to secure a director for Sedalia; or changing the city ordinance that governs the council's approval of a fulltime director.

According to Broadus, the vote of four council members and the Mayor is needed to change the present ordinance which states that the mayor cannot cast a tie-breaking vote on hiring a director.

Nader predicts Rockefeller will not be VP

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Consumer advocate Ralph Nader criticized President Ford Thursday for opposing consumer legislation and predicted Nelson A. Rockefeller will not be confirmed as Ford's vice president.

Nader made his remarks at a news conference before delivering an address to students at the University of Missouri in Kansas City.

Nader recalled his March 1973 prediction that former President Nixon would resign and said his prediction now is that Rockefeller will not make it through the congressional confirmation process. He urged the former New York governor to withdraw his name.

Nader said Rockefeller has so many conflicting interests — in oil, finance and other areas — that he is not qualified for high office.

"Owning the country is one thing; running it is another," he said.

Nader said the Senate Rules Committee skirted the issue of Rockefeller's financial disclosure but predicted the House Judiciary Committee will delve into it deeply.

He said Ford has been suggesting ways to whip inflation while silently opposing consumer legislation that would help stop the inflationary spiral. He said legislation to create a consumer protection agency was stopped by Ford's congressional lobbyists.

Nader added two suggestions to the 12-point voluntary antiinflation program proposed here by Ford earlier in the week.

"Businesses should recognize that they are not going to stop inflation as long as profits are sky high," Nader said, adding that every corporation should pledge to maintain a stable price level.

The second suggestion by Nader was that businesses should "compete more vigorously and stop engaging in so many anticompetitive practices."

ment for disposition of White House tapes and other documents reached with the former president at about the time the pardon was being considered.

He said the White House was besieged with requests for access to the tapes by the special prosecutor and others, and that he set out to settle that question before the pardon issue arose.

The issue of the tapes produced the sharpest question of the hearing from Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., who noted the agreement gives Nixon ownership of the tapes and provides for their destruction on his death. She said that raised a suspicion that there might be recorded conversations between Ford and Nixon that Ford would like to see kept from the public.

Ford did not reply directly to her question but said the tapes were fully under the control of the White House and would be available to the special prosecutor or the courts.

Miss Holtzman was the only subcommittee member who seemed to regard Ford as just another witness, not the President. She said the hearings were the result of "dark suspicions" that could not possibly be allayed in the brief time set aside for the hearing.

As she started to list the suspicions, including the possibility that the pardon was the result of a deal, Ford interrupted her and said, "I want to assure you, the Congress and the American people that there was no deal, period, under no circumstances."

Separate envoys

Byelorussia and the Ukraine, constituent republics of the USSR, have separate representation in the United Nations General Assembly. This is the result of a compromise after the Soviet Union protested against the separate admission of members of the British Commonwealth during the formative days of the UN.

Sirica delays ruling on Nixon appearance

WASHINGTON (AP) — After hearing reports that former President Richard M. Nixon's health is rapidly improving, U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica delayed a decision Thursday on whether to order Nixon to testify at the Watergate cover-up trial.

Sirica said he would prefer Nixon testify personally in court rather than give depositions in California if he continues to recover from a chronic phlebitis condition.

Sirica said he would reach a decision in three weeks on the issue of Nixon's testimony. His ruling came after the prosecutors played the first White House tape recording relating to the Watergate cover-up.

At the hearing, Nixon sought to be excused from testifying. His lawyer, Herbert J. Miller, said he would have a new health report and "I'm sure it will be favorable."

The hearing was held without the jury present.

Sirica also asked lawyers for the defendants and the prosecution to submit the names of doctors who could make an independent examination of the former President at his seaside estate in San Clemente, Calif.

The prosecutors and defendant John D. Ehrlichman have subpoenaed Nixon, but his testimony is not likely to be required for several weeks.

The special Watergate prosecutors say they will question Nixon in the courtroom only if Ehrlichman is successful with his subpoena.

Nixon's lawyer argued that written questions and answers submitted by Ehrlichman to Nixon should be sufficient. Prosecution and defense lawyers said that would be unacceptable.

On Oct. 3, in asking that Nixon be excused, Miller said in court papers that the physical condition of the former President was such that if he testified there would be "the risk of permanent injury or incapacitation."

On Thursday, Miller said in court, "The prognosis... is very good at the moment."

Besides asking for doctors' names, Sirica said he wanted prosecution and defense lawyers to determine who should pay for any medical inquiry.

Of the projected report on Nixon's health, Sirica said, "I'm quite certain it's going to be favorable."

Earlier Thursday, more than one hundred persons in the courtroom, including Sirica, donned earphones to hear the first of more than 30 White House tapes.

With chief prosecution witness John W. Dean III listening as he sat on the witness stand, the jury and spectators heard former President Richard M. Nixon praise his former counsel.

Nixon said Dean's handling of the cover-up three months after the break-in at Democratic National headquarters "has been very skillful because you — putting your fingers in the dikes every time that leaks have sprung here and sprung there."

The incident marked the first time Dean had been summoned before Nixon to make a progress report on the cover-up. It occurred Sept. 15, 1972, the same day the original seven defendants were indicted by a grand jury. Also at the meeting was former White House chief-of-staff H. R. Haldeman.

During the conversation, Nixon discussed using the FBI and other federal agencies for political revenge during his second term, a move Dean called an exciting prospect.

The contents of the 32-minute tape had been disclosed previously in a limited White House version and later by the House Judiciary Committee.

Before the tape was played, U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica turned down repeated defense objections to both the use of transcripts and the verification of the voices by Dean, now serving a minimum one-year prison term for obstruction of justice in the cover-up.

Many passages on the tape could not be understood except as related on the transcripts.

In one reference, to a civil suit then pending as a result of the break-in, Dean referred to U.S. District Judge Charles Richey as a man "not known to be one of the intellectuals on the bench."

Nixon then commented that Richey acts "in his own stupid way."

More than 100 persons, including Sirica, were issued a set of olive-grey sponge earphones dispensed from supermarket carts wheeled through the aisle by lawyers from the prosecutors' staff.

When Assistant Prosecutor George Frampton tried to get Sirica's attention, he discovered that the judge had prematurely replaced his earphones and could not hear him.

The novelty of a courtroom silent except for the electronically produced voices of Nixon, Haldeman and Dean prompted many persons to swivel around watching each other listen.

While the jury listened intently throughout, some spectators giggled freely when they heard Nixon in jest admonish the former head of his 1972 re-election committee, Clark MacGregor: "And don't bug anybody without asking me, Okay?"

Congress, Ford may be near agreement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head-to-head impasse between President Ford and Congress over cutting off U.S. military aid to Turkey was broken Thursday with approval of a new compromise reportedly acceptable to Ford. It was passed overwhelmingly by the House and then by the Senate within hours after the House failed by only two votes to override Ford's second veto of a congressional Turkish aid cutoff.

The House approved the new compromise 101 to 33, and the Senate sent it to Ford by voice vote.

The new compromise delays cutoff of the Turkish aid until Dec. 10, providing Turkey sends no more "implements of war" to its occupations forces on Cyprus, does not enlarge those forces and continue to observe the present cease-fire. The measure Ford vetoed earlier would have cut off aid if Turkey sent any kind of equipment to the Cyprus forces.

The compromise passed the House with little debate after leaders announced it would not be vetoed by Ford.

"It is a compromise acceptable to the President," said Rep. Elford A. Cederberg, R-Mich. "It is better than it was but worse than it should be."

Insurance

general servicing company for this area is the Royal-Globe Insurance Companies, Kansas City.

Although participation in the program is not mandatory, it will be necessary to purchase the insurance in order to be eligible for virtually all forms of federal or federally-related financing assistance for building purposes in the designated flood-prone areas.

Officials of the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), who are supervising the program, said this included FHA or VA mortgages, loans from the Small Business Administration or loans from any federally regulated or supervised banks and savings and loan institutions.

Also, Cunningham, explained, any buildings constructed in the designated flood-prone areas in the future must meet city regulations regarding special construction measures to be taken to minimize the effect of flooding on the structures.

The flood insurance program was created, HUD officials explained, "to stimulate individual participation in... protection against natural disasters, and to help promote sound flood plain management and land use and control measures on the part of local governing authorities."

House approval of the compromise was by a 191 to 33 vote.

Rep. John Brademas, D-Ind., a leading opponent of the Turkish aid, said Ford was consulted by telephone from a meeting of House leaders, opponents and White House aides and accepted the compromise "very, very, very, very reluctantly."

The compromise cutoff approved by Congress Wednesday died when the House upheld Ford's veto 161 to 83, two votes short of the two-thirds needed to override.

That measure would have cut off U.S. aid to Turkey earlier than Dec. 10 if Turkey sent any U.S. equipment to its Cyprus forces.

In his second veto message, Ford said this would pose the same dangers to the NATO alliance and Cyprus peace efforts as the immediate Turkish aid cutoff he vetoed the first time.

Congress, Ford contended, "has for the second time refused to recognize the realities of the situation."

But Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., a leading opponent of the aid, called Ford's new veto "an outright endorsement of Turkey's use of American guns and bullets to occupy another country."

More than 250,000 federal workers are caught in the impasse between Ford and Congress and many of them will get short paychecks this week and next.

The Turkish aid cutoff was in emergency resolutions authorizing federal agencies that were legally penniless since Sept. 30 to spend until Congress approves their regular appropriations bills.

Without it the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Department of Labor, Department of Agriculture, Agency for International Development and many small agencies could pay no wages earned or bills incurred after Sept. 30.

Shaw again before grand jury here

Robert Shaw, vice-president of Christenson, Barclay and Shaw Inc., was back in Sedalia Thursday morning to testify before the Pettis County grand jury. Shaw's firm handled the advertising for the Ozark Music Festival held in Sedalia during July on the State Fairgrounds.

Shaw was among the witnesses to testify before the grand jury, called to investigate the festival, at its last meeting on Friday. He was subpoenaed for that appearance, but was asked to re-appear on Thursday. He entered the jury room about 10:10 a.m.

No new subpoenas have been issued by the grand jury.

Welfare payments slashed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal welfare grants to the states have been slashed $61.7 million the last half of this year as the first shot at enforcing a crackdown on welfare abuses, the government announced Thursday.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare said the reduction includes $18.2 million the states had estimated they could save, and another $43.4 million withheld by HEW.

The intended effect of the fund reductions is to spur states to correct welfare payment errors faster. HEW estimates that 40 per cent of the 10.7 million adults and children receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) are either ineligible for such aid or are being overpaid or underpaid.

James S. Dwight, administrator of HEW's Social and Rehabilitation Service, said the additional federal fund cutback was based on interim error-reduction goals states must meet by Dec. 31.

A national sampling of 88,000 welfare families over a 12-month period found that 9.7 cent were ineligible for AFDC, another 21.7 per cent were overpaid, and 8.1 per cent were underpaid.
